FIREWORKS BAR LIFTED; WARN CITY OF PERILS

Caution Is Urged on 4th Celebrators.

Legal But Dangerous

Legal permission to shoot fireworks today was granted Chicago's populace yesterday by the city's law department. The July 4 toll of dead and injured throughout the country the last two years was:

	Dead	Injured
1929	3	28

With that in consideration, the Chicago Safety Council, Commissioner of Health Kegel, and other protective agencies warned yesterday against the use of explosives. Potential celebrators were reminded that in 1909 the July 4 death toll for the nation mounted to 215 and the injured numbered 5,460. The blame, said the Safety Council, "lies solely with parents if their children are killed or maimed."

Fireworks are not barred to Chicago's youth on this 154th celebration of the nation's independence, Acting Corporation Counsel James W. Breen decreed late yesterday, even though the city council on Wednesday repealed the part of the firearms ordinance which permits use of the explosives on the holiday. Because Mayor Thompson left town for the week-end without signing the repeal, pyrotechnics and all the explosives desired will be considered legal, Breen said.

Commissioner of Police Alcock sent an order to his commanding officers instructing them to arrest and prosecute any person found discharging "firearms" within the limits of the city, but the legal problem concerning firecrackers was settled "by the law," said Breen, and the ordinance bars fireworks at any time save July 4.

Showery Evening Forecast.

Chicago will be both noisy and patriotic in its celebration, the preparations indicated. Scores of community, lodge, and war veteran exercises will be held throughout the day. The weather, according to the official forecast, will be cloudy and warmer, possibly with showers this afternoon and tonight.

The pre-Fourth accident toll was mounting before the city hall ruling permitting explosives was made public. Last night Arthur Beilenga, 12 years old, 218 West 107th street, was in the Roseland Community hospital with a possible case of lockjaw as a result of shooting himself with a pistol he had bought to celebrate the holiday.

Richard Merrick, 12 years old, son of Ald. Clinton Merrick of Evanston, was burned when a package of firecrackers exploded in his hip pocket. He was being treated at his home, 1829 Ashland avenue.

Safety Council Makes Plea.

Expecting a list of such accidents, the Chicago Safety council issued a last minute plea against fireworks, pointing to the July 4 death statistics and adding: "Eighty per cent of those killed by fireworks are children! "

The council's president, Charles L. Rice, said: "There were 4,044 colonists killed in the war of independence and 4,290 Americans killed by fireworks during the last thirty years of July 4 celebrations. Similarly, there were 6,004 colonists injured in the revolution, while 96,000 persons—most of them children—have been injured by fireworks during the last three decades."

The council has been campaigning in the schools against fireworks and has emphasized that parents are solely responsible if their children are injured, maimed or killed.

Aldermen Vote Repeal.

The legal tangle on the matter was started when the city council voted on Wednesday to repeal a section of the city code prohibiting the shooting of fireworks anywhere within the city "except on the fourth day of July, or on the fifth day of July if the fourth shall fall upon a Sunday." The council augmented this action by also repealing a previous section of the code which prohibited the firing of "firearms, fireworks, or explosives" within two blocks of any hospital.

THIRD WOUNDED WHEN ASSASSIN FIRES INTO AUTO

$20,000 Moran Rum Is Seized Here.

The War on Gangs

1—Two Chicago gangsters are shot dead in Detroit in a mysterious attack which the police think may have been made to silence those fired upon.

2—In Chicago, Chief Investigator Roche seizes $20,000 worth of whisky believed to have been shipped from Canada to the Moran gang by freight.

3—In Los Angeles, George Davis, one of the Lingle suspects held on Chicago orders, nearly escaped from the police, but was recaptured.

4—Jack McGurn, known to the police as Capone machine gunner, is sentenced to one year in the county jail and to pay a fine for carrying concealed weapons.

Gangster warfare, developing from the activities of independent guerillas on the near north side, last evening claimed the lives of two Chicago men in Detroit. A third was seriously wounded.

The dead were William Cannon and George Collins, pals of the late Henry "Hoops-a-Daisy" Connors, who was killed in September of 1929 in the C. & O. restaurant and cabaret at 509 North Clark street. Connors was an ex-convict. So was Cannon, who, since Connors' death, had been living with his widow, Mrs. Julia Kuffel Connors of the Olympic hotel, 1015 North Clark street. Collins' record is not known. The wounded man is Michael Stitzel.

Lingle Inquiry Motive Hinted.

The police, seeking a motive for the mysterious slayings, said that Cannon and Collins might have been killed to stop them from giving information in the investigation of the murder of Alfred Lingle, TRIBUNE reporter. Another theory was that Cannon and his gang were trying to establish connections with rum runners in Detroit that would permit them to steal Chicago customers of the Capone or Moran-Aiello mobs.

The killing was as daring as it was spectacular. The three men apparently were lured to their death by a decoy telephone call, which took them in their car to the front of the La Salle hotel, Woodward avenue and Adelaide street, in the downtown section of Detroit.

Assassin Fires Into Auto.

They parked at the curb between two other cars. Cannon was at the wheel. Collins was on his right. Stitzel was occupying the rear seat. As they waited, a tall, well dressed man, weighing about 220 pounds and wearing a panama hat, strolled out of the hotel lobby. He seemed not to notice the car until he was almost opposite it. Then he drew a sawed off .38 revolver from his belt and fired two shots at Collins and two at Cannon—in the head and chest. Death was instantaneous for both victims.

Stitzel, unable to leave the car because it was a two door sedan, doubled up in the back seat, pretending to be dead. But the gunman, without hesitation, turned and fired twice at him. His aim was deliberate and Stitzel was wounded in the back and neck. The assassin then returned to the hotel lobby. He disappeared and no trace of him was found nor did the hotel proprietors admit any knowledge of his identity.

Woman Tells of Shooting.

A woman on her way to prayer meeting was the closest eyewitness. She was right behind the killer when he started firing. In her statement to the Detroit police she said that he "just sauntered back to the hotel."

Stitzel, told he would probably die, said he was playing pool when Cannon met him and asked if he would like to take a ride.

"When we got to the hotel," Stitzel said, "I noticed two men. They eyed us sharply. I said to Cannon, 'Who are those guys?' He said, 'I don't know. I never saw them before.' Then the shooting started."

GANGLAND'S DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE

2 MISSIONARIES FLOGGED IN CHINA; U. S. TO PROTEST

Washington, D. C., July 3.—(AP)—After receiving a report that American missionaries had been driven through the streets of Suiping, Honan, China, with sticks, the state department announced today the American legation at Peiping had been instructed to make "urgent protests."

A report from Frank P. Lockhart, consul general at Hankow, described how the Rev. Thomas I. Lee of Minneapolis, Minn., and Deaconess Thonea Sandland of Grygla, Minn., were paraded through the streets of Suiping and roughly handled by a local political organization.

Earlier, the department said, Lockhart had received a telegram dated June 24 from an American missionary at Sinyangchow reporting that on the morning of June 23 the missionaries had suffered indignities at Suiping.

The state department said the local organizations reported as responsible for the indignities appeared to be the propaganda bureau and the local branch of the Kuomintang.

Instructions have been sent the Peiping legation, the department said, that protests are to be made immediately to the highest military authorities now in control in Suiping. Further instructions have been sent, the department added, that even if Suiping is now in the hands of the northern faction, a protest should be made to Nanking, referring to the alleged responsibilities of the Kuomintang party organizations.

MAYOR FREES 200 PRISONERS FOR THE FOURTH

Atlanta, Ga., July 3.—(AP)—More than 200 prisoners in the city jail were preparing tonight to spend the Fourth of July with their families and friends as the result of an executive order issued today by Acting Mayor J. Allen Couch directing that they be freed at midnight.

The order called for freeing every prisoner possible under the laws affecting clemency by the mayor.

Mayor Couch said the prisoners were not felons, but were held for minor violations of city ordinances.

"There are just as many people out of jail that belong there," said the mayor.

Rejuvenating Lancet Works Too, Too Well

New York, July 3.—[Special.]—Until George Frederick Williams started reading about revitalized man and the so-called miracle of rejuvenation one week in his life just about stood for the whole of twenty-five years. He knew so little variety.

From Monday until Saturday, he ate, worked, and slept. Arising at 6 a. m. in his home at Fort Wadsworth, Staten Island, he breakfasted with his wife and two children, then joined the rush hour tide of humanity moving on toward Manhattan where, until 5 p. m. each day, he worked, earning $30 a week as a messenger for the Sterling Watch company.

Never Late; Never Absent.

He was never late, he never missed a day and other employés never had to wait for the funds of the pay roll he fetched from the bank each Saturday as his chief chore. By 6 p. m. he had survived the welter and crush of the evening rush hour and was back home in Staten island for a quiet evening with his little family.

For a quarter of a century, such had been the week day life of George Frederick Williams, now 53. Its one variation was of Sundays. Then he slept late—until 8 a. m.—and attended morning church service and sometimes an evening movie.

A model husband and father was the way Williams was regarded. The community respected him for his sober reliability. Then, on April 29, last, the time-honored and trusted messenger pocketed the company's pay roll of $2,260 and ran away with a blonde barber shop manicurist.

Money Gone; Surrenders.

For two months he blazed a primrose path with his inamorata through Washington, D. C.; Greensboro, S. C.; Chicago, and Detroit. But when his money ran out, the old yoke of life fell back on him, and he returned and surrendered.

Arraigned for the larceny today in General Sessions, a probation officer's report revealed that Williams had secretly undergone a rejuvenation operation last January and that immediately his entire viewpoint of life had changed completely.

Judge Donnellan sentenced him to from one to two years in Sing Sing upon his plea of guilty.

Winton, Veteran Auto Man, Is Sued for Divorce at 70

Cleveland, O., July 3.—(AP)—Suit for divorce from Alexander Winton, 70, veteran automobile and combustion engine manufacturer, was filed here today by Mrs. Marion Campbell Winton, prominent in Cleveland social and music circles and nationally known for philanthropic work among Indian children.

Flyers Soar On at 538 Hours Despite Scares

BY ROBERT WOOD.

The business of stretching the world's refueling endurance record settled down to dull routine yesterday as the flying Hunter brothers in their airplane City of Chicago kept up their endless wandering over Sky Harbor, with no indication of coming down until next week, if then.

Last night Kenneth and John Hunter had been in the air for 22 days and no one questioned that they would be able to make good their boast made a week ago that they would celebrate the Fourth of July aloft.

The flyers had 538 hours behind them at 2:40 o'clock this morning. The 209th contact with the refueling plane, Big Ben, was made last evening.

Bolt Drops from Plane.

There was a brief stir of excitement last night when a bolt wiggled loose from the engine mount and dropped to the ground, but the flurry was soon over. As the plane flew on into the night and there was no more word from above, the refueling flyers went to bed and the ground crew went back to their cards and their cots, confident that when the holiday crowds began to stream into the field today the City of Chicago still would be flying.

The lost bolt was one of many which hold the engine to its mount. Kenneth discovered that it was missing. He has a sharp eye for loosening bolts in the engine mount. Last year a motor ripped from the front of his plane while he was flying over Davenport, Ia., but he landed safely.

Just before sundown Kenneth was seen crawling along the catwalk replacing the lost bolt. Then he crawled back into the cabin and the Hunter boys settled down for a chilly flight through the night.

"It's Up to the Motor."

The two other Hunter brothers, Walter and Albert, who are handling the refueling planes were confident that their brothers would stay up until "something happens."

"Maybe it will be Saturday, or Sunday, or maybe next week—I don't know; it's up to the motor now," said Walter.

Lieut. E. L. Moon of Rantoul went up in an army plane yesterday to talk to the airmen by radio and he brought back a report of a conversation that made it plain that the Hunters don't intend to come down for a long time.

"They said they were getting used to the life in the air by now," Lieut. Moon said. "Their faces were clean and shaven and their hair was combed. I couldn't see any traces of the three weeks' strain in their smiling faces."

Yesterday morning the ground crew was thrown into momentary panic when the plane sped over the field and dropped a note saying, "Bring oil right away or the motor will burn up." The refueling plane took off immediately. Oil was lowered to the City of Chicago and everything went well until last evening, when the army plane went up to attempt a second radio contact.

Wire Tangles on Plane.

"Jockeying for position for the contact, our wire got twisted around the navigation light of the endurance plane," said Lieut. Moon. "We had just made the contact and one of the brothers motioned to speed up a little. Then the plane dropped down and I cut the wire, fearing that, caught as it was, the plane might go into a nose dive. They tried to avoid the first contact because one of the brothers was asleep and I guess the other didn't want to bother with the microphone."

As the days roll by new offers of money are made to the Hunter broth-

HOOVER SIGNS; WINS HIS POINT; CONGRESS ENDS

Senate Gives In and Adopts Measure.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 3.—[Special.]—The second session of the 71st congress, the longest in eight years, came to an end late tonight after a turbulent day occupied in straightening out the tangles which have delayed adjournment for the last week or more.

The senate adjourned at 10:38 o'clock, the house having quit about three minutes earlier.

President Hoover at 10:15 o'clock signed a world war veterans' bill in accord with his recommendations and substantially the same as the measure passed by the house last week after the sustaining of his veto of the original legislation.

The President also signed other bills, including the second deficiency and District of Columbia appropriation measures.

Special Session Call Ready.

President Hoover will make public tomorrow morning a call for a special session of the senate for the consideration of the naval treaty. This was announced late tonight. The call will provide for the convening of the senate on Monday.

The President will transmit a special message to the senate at the opening of the session on Monday. In this message he is expected to deal at considerable length with the terms of the treaty and to urge its ratification without delay.

It is the hope of the President's advisers that the treaty debate can be concluded within ten days or two weeks. Opponents on the other hand think that it may become apparent that it cannot be ratified promptly and that they will be able to force an adjournment of the special session until fall.

Some May Refuse to Stay.

One of the difficulties confronting the session is the likelihood that more than a third of the senators and possibly almost a majority will refuse to remain in Washington, thus jeopardizing the maintenance of a quorum.

The senate approved the conference report on the veterans' bill shortly after 9 o'clock by a vote of 48 to 14. The action followed more than six hours of debate, in which senators hostile to the administration assailed President Hoover and the failure of the senate and house conferees to accept the higher rates and other provisions of the bill as amended by the senate early this week. The house approved the conference report this noon by a vote of 342 to 3.

Wins Wickersham Fight.

The President won another victory during the afternoon when the senate, by a vote of 37 to 22, approved the house amendment to the second deficiency bill granting $250,000 for the Wickersham commission without restrictions as to its activities. The senate last week had reduced the amount to $50,000, with a proviso that its work should be limited to prohibition.

The controversy over the District of Columbia appropriation bill, another of the obstacles which has stood in the way of an earlier adjournment, was disposed of when senate and house conferees agreed upon $9,500,000 as the federal government's contribution to the expenses of the district. For six weeks the two houses have been deadlocked, the senate holding out for $12,000,000 and the house insisting upon $9,000,000. Since the new fiscal year commenced two days ago the district government has technically been without funds.

Norris Holds Up Parade.

The house approved the district bill conference report late in the afternoon and recessed to await conclusion of senate action on the veterans' bill. The senate acted on the conference report after disposing of the veterans' measure.

There was no opposition to it, but Senator George W. Norris [Rep., Neb.], who had made several speeches during the day and who early in the evening met defeat on a motion to recess until Monday, insisted on talking on the plight of the farmer and iniquities perpetrated upon agriculture by the new tariff law. Senator Morris had declared that congress should not adjourn until Muscle Shoals legislation, on which conferees of the senate and house are deadlocked, is acted upon.

An adjournment resolution was adopted by the house about 9:30 o'clock after the senate had acted upon the veterans' bill. The resolution was sent to the senate, the house meanwhile disposing of a few final formalities, including approval of a supplemental conference report containing a few noncontroversial items in the second deficiency bill. The senate adopted the adjournment resolution a little later by a vote of 38 to 12.

The closing deliberations of the house were presided over by Representative Carl Mapes [Rep., Mich.], who was designated by Speaker Longworth as speaker pro tem. Mr. Longworth caught a 6:30 train after being assured the session would end tonight.

When the senate voted on the conference report on the veterans' bill many of the Democrats who had denounced it most fiercely swung into line and voted for it.

14 Vote Against Bill.

The fourteen to vote against it included six Republicans and eight Democrats. The six Republicans were Senators Robert M. La Follette and John J. Blaine [Wis.], Norris and R. B. Howell [Neb.], Bronson Cutting [N. M.], and Hiram Johnson [Cal.]. The eight Democrats were Senators Hugo Black [Ala.], T. H. Caraway [Ark.], Tom Connally [Tex.], Carter Glass and Claude A. Swanson [Va.], Pat Harrison [Miss.], Kenneth McKellar [Tenn.], and Elmer Thomas [Okla.].

The senate and house conferees on the veterans' bill reached an agreement early in the day after the receipt of a letter from President Hoover by Senator James E. Watson [Rep., Ind.], head of the senate conference group, assailing the senate amendments as tending to "reestablish injustices and discriminations between veterans, impose unwarranted burdens on the taxpayer, and perpetuate entirely wrong principles in such legislation."

Amendments Are Stricken.

On the basis of the President's insistence upon the house bill, which he described as "a generous national action based upon sound principles," the Republican conferees of the two houses eliminated all but two of the senate amendments, the Democrats dissenting.

The present session, which commenced in December, has been the longest in the last eight years. It is the second session of the Seventy-first congress, which began when President Hoover was inaugurated in March, 1929. The President convened congress in special session on April 15, 1929. The session recessed from June 19 to Aug. 19 and continued until the latter part of November, there being only a brief interval before the opening of the regular session in December.

Pensions Authorized.

The veterans' bill as approved authorizes pensions to veterans who served 90 days in the world war prior to the signing of the armistice and who are 25 per cent dr more disabled, whether or not as a result of service. The rates are $12 a month for 25 per cent disability, $18 for 50 per cent disability, $24 for 75 per cent disability, and $40 for total disability. No pensions shall be paid to men acquiring disability as a result of "willful misconduct," nor to men whose income is in excess of income tax exemptions.

It is estimated that the cost to the government during the fiscal year 1931 will be $31,555,050; during 1932, $50,788,448; during 1933, $63,650,448; during 1934, $68,909,448, and during 1935, $74,577,448.

Veterans numbering about 156,000 are expected to benefit the first year, about 290,000 the second year, about 327,000 the third year, about 350,000 the fourth year, and about 380,000 the fifth year.

The provisions of the bill are supplemental to compensation allowances already provided for so-called service-connected disabilities and to other war veterans' benefits such as the soldiers' bonus and insurance.

The only senate amendments accepted were two sponsored by the American Legion, one limiting the authority of the controller general over the veterans' bureau and the other relating to litigation.

President Hoover's letter to Senator Watson opposing the senate amendments and expressing approval of the house bill said in part:

"I must say at once that these amendments again reestablish injustices and discriminations between veterans, impose unwarranted burdens on the taxpayer, and perpetuate entirely wrong principles in such legislation," the letter read. "There are many points of criticism in this direction.

"For instance under these amendments the average allowance to veterans whose disabilities were incurred in civil life subsequent to the war will work out very close to the same average payment as that given to veterans who actually suffered from battle and in the trenches. This is an injustice both to the men who suffered from the war and to the public.

Reverse House Action.

"The amendments reverse the house action limiting allowances to men who are exempt from income tax. From this removal of the indication of necessity, a wealthy veteran, if he becomes permanently disabled, either partially or wholly, as the result of an automobile accident next week may draw a life allowance from the United States treasury.

"The senate amendments seriously affect the men who were enrolled after the armistice and who never heard a shot fired; they seriously modify the clauses in respect to venereal diseases, and impose a burden upon the treasury therefor, which must be condemned from the point of view of family life.

Bill Called Generous.

"The bill as passed by the house before amended by the senate was in itself a generous national action based upon sound principles. Except for some minor technical points the house bill met the entire approval of the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars. They did not ask for any more. They had shown a sense of responsibility not only to the country but to the veterans, by unhesitatingly expressing their opposition to the major amendments."

In the senate debate criticisms of the final bill were expressed by a number of the senators who made the unsuccessful fight for the higher Spanish war pension rates.

Senator David I. Walsh [Dem., Mass.], said that failure to adopt the higher rates "means more discontent and more agitation and we are going to have this problem on our doorstep again."

Senator Key Pittman [Dem., Nev.] described the pensions as "just a cheap, stingy gratuity to soldiers to get these unpleasant people off the door of the White House."

Senator W. F. George [Dem., Ga.] denounced the clause barring the payment of allowances to veterans suffering from venereal disease obtained through their own "willful misconduct" as "hypocrisy."

Senator George said that President Hoover owes his present position to the soldiers of the world war. He said if it had not been for the war he would still be "making profits for British syndicates."

Hoover Clashed Often With Congress But He Usually Won Out in the End

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 3.—[Special.]—While the session of congress which closed tonight was marked by clashes with President Hoover a final summing up of its record shows that most of his reverses were of a temporary character.

The outstanding rebuffs administered to the President were the rejection of the nomination of Judge John J. Parker for membership on the Supreme court and the passage of the Spanish war pension bill over his veto.

The President met with defeat in the senate on a number of occasions during the consideration of the tariff and other measures, but in nearly all cases the heavy administration majority in the house was able to force changes in conference and enactment of legislation in line with his program.

House Supports President.

Rarely did the house desert the President, the most notable instance of such a defection, besides its passage of the Spanish war pension bill, being the approval of the original world war veterans' bill. After the administration leaders were able in a party caucus to line up sufficient support to sustain the President's veto on the veterans' bill there were ample votes to withstand all attacks on the Hoover program during the closing days of the session.

The President's two victories today in the final approval of a world war veterans' bill satisfactory to him and in the restoration of the full $250,000 appropriation for the Wickersham commission were typical of the situation existing throughout the session.

In the fights over both of these propositions the senate, dominated by a coalition of Democrats and radical Republicans, originally rejected Hoover proposals, but finally swung into line through the pressure of the house.

The new tariff law, the chief product of the session, is regarded as fairly close to what the President would have wished. While the President steadfastly refused to declare himself on rate controversies he took a firm stand against the senate export debenture and flexible tariff amendments, and although temporarily defeated in the upper branch of congress won out on both propositions in the end.

In the special session preceding the regular session which has just closed the President similarly obtained the enactment of a farm relief bill in exact accord with his recommendations after the senate had added an export debenture over his protest.

"Law Enforcement" Program.

The President brought about enactment of a considerable part of what he describes as his "law enforcement" program. Congress enacted into law the bills transferring the prohibition bureau from the treasury to the department of justice, a series of half a dozen prison bills, and a bill modifying the Jones law to eliminate from its operation minor offenses. The house passed a number of court congestion bills. Some of these are on the senate calendar, but the court commissioners' bill, over which there was the greatest controversy, remains in the senate judiciary committee. The house also passed a bill consolidating border patrol activities, but action by the senate commerce committee on this measure went over until next session. The District of Columbia prohibition enforcement bill, which was part of the President's program, failed of passage in either house.

One of the most important pieces of legislation enacted upon the President's recommendation during the regular session was the joint resolution reducing income taxes for the present year. This was proposed by the President as a means of combating the business depression and he succeeded to an unusual degree in obtaining cooperation from the leaders in both parties.

Other Principal Measures.

Other principal measures enacted into law during the regular session included the funding of the French debt, an increase in civil war pensions, reorganization of the federal power commission, permanent extension of the life of the radio commission, creation of a national institute of health, an increase in the annual authorization for federal aid roads, licensing of fruit and vegetable dealers, amendments to the pure food act relating to cannery products and to the oleomargarine act, revision of the vocational rehabilitation act, and broadening of civil service retirement privileges.

Investigations Feature Session.

Investigations were a feature of the session, the senate lobby committee holding the limelight for many months. The senate senatorial campaign fund committee will continue to operate during the recess, as will a new house campaign fund committee.

Appropriations of the session totaled about $4,850,000,000, as compared with $4,665,000,000 a year ago, congress being unable to cope with the upward trend of expenditures. There were several contests over presidential nominations in the senate, the one which attracted the most attention outside of that of the Parker nomination being that involving Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes.

IMPRISON TWO, ROB STORE.

Two Negro robbers held up a grocery and meat market at 1812 Ogden avenue yesterday morning, forced the proprietor, A. J. Barlels, and a cake wagon driver, William Hammer, 1460 Grace street, into the store's refrigerator and fled with $102.

BOILING SOUP KILLS BABY.

Elmer Thompson, 17 months old, 2181 North McVicker avenue, died yesterday at the Keystone hospital of injuries received when a kettle of boiling soup overturned on him from the kitchen stove.

SENATE YIELDS ON WICKERSHAM FUND; VOTES ALL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 3.—[Special.]—President Hoover won a victory today when the senate, reversing itself by a roll call vote of 37 to 22, adopted a house amendment to the deficiency supply bill appropriating $250,000 for the Wickersham commission without limiting the commission's activities to an investigation of prohibition.

With the victory, however, went sharp denunciation of the commission's activities by Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.], author of the proposal to allow the commission only $50,000 specifically for prohibition work, and Senator George W. Norris [Rep., Neb.], who, while admitting he is "gravely disappointed" in the commission, voted for the larger allotment.

"I want the President and the commission to go as far as they want to go with this thing," said Norris. "I'm not satisfied with the commission's work, but I don't want it to be said that we hampered the work."

Fight Carried to Floor.

The $250,000 appropriation, originally requested by President Hoover for continuance of the commission's study of law enforcement problems, was stricken out of the deficiency bill on a point of order in the house. When the senate finance committee, of which he is chairman, adopted Glass' suggestion to appropriate $50,000, Senator W. L. Jones [Rep., Wash.] carried the fight for $250,000 to the floor.

Within an hour after the senate rejected the Jones amendment President Hoover announced that private subscriptions would be secured to finance the commission's general inquiry and yesterday the house approved an amendment appropriating the $250,000.

Among the 22 who voted in the senate today against the house amendment only four—Senators J. J. Blaine [Wis.], Bronson Cutting [N. M.], Hiram Johnson [Cal.], and R. M. La Follette [Wis.]—were Republicans. Five Democrats—Senators A. W. Barkley [Ky.], W. E. Brock [Tenn.], Key Pittman [Nev.], J. E. Ransdell [La.], and Morris Sheppard [Tex.]—voted for the $250,000 appropriation.

"Camouflage," Says Glass.

"This commission was created to camouflage the administration's stand on prohibition," charged Senator Glass in the brief debate, "and it has done a good job at that. It hasn't divorced prohibition from politics, but it has divorced itself from an inquiry into prohibition. From the very start this commission was to politically camouflage the position of the administration on prohibition. I do not object to that, but I do object to spending a quarter of a million dollars of the taxpayers' money to provide the medium through which the administration may camouflage."

Norris scored the appointment of lawyers to the commission, asserting that reforms have never been instituted by lawyers, and he attacked the commission's policy of inquiries in secret.

"Secrecy will destroy whatever good effect the inquiry might have," he said. "The commission will never win the confidence of the public unless the public is allowed to know what the commission is doing."

Norris hoped the commission would consider his proposal to abolish the jurisdiction now given federal courts in cases involving diverse citizenship.

Ralph Capone Would Drop Appeal to Reduce Penalty

Ralph J. Capone, under sentence of three years and a fine of $10,000 for income tax fraud, will abandon his appeal if one year is deducted from the sentence, it was indicated yesterday. George N. Murdock, Capone's attorney, entered a motion for a reduction of the sentence before Judge Wilkerson. It will be argued Monday.

INFANT KIDNAPED 6 WEEKS AGO IS SAFE, SAYS NOTE

An unsigned letter, mailed in Chicago and purporting to have come from the young woman who kidnaped 2 year old Mary Agnes Maroney six weeks ago, was received yesterday by the missing child's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Maroney, 6200 Wentworth avenue.

The writer stated that Mary Agnes was in Kansas City and in good health. The sender cautioned Maroney against showing the missive to the police lest his daughter be "done away with."

While withholding the letter from police officers, who called at his home, Maroney indicated the letter had given him hopes of regaining his daughter. The writer instructed him to establish communication with her through the want ad columns of an evening newspaper. He said he hoped to hear from her again by tomorrow evening.

Maroney said he believed, from the similarity of the script, that the writer of the letter was the same person who, several days after the kidnaping wrote his wife, Kathryn, a note advising her not to be alarmed and promising to return Mary Agnes safely within two months.

CONVICTS WHO FOUGHT FIRE TO GET TERMS CUT

Frankfort, Ky., July 3.—(AP)—Prisoners who aided in fighting the $250,000 fire at the state reformatory here yesterday will be rewarded by their sentences being shortened, Gov. Sampson announced this today and added that reformatory officials are preparing a list of those who did meritorious work.

More than 800 prisoners were in the buildings enclosed by a wooden stockade, one of which burned, and all either marched in orderly fashion to the stone walled enclosure of the reformatory proper or followed orders to aid in fighting the fire.

None attempted to escape and a sprained ankle and one man temporarily overcome by smoke constituted the casualties. A chair factory, privately operated with prison labor, was destroyed. There are 2,384 prisoners in all in the reformatory.

PRESIDENT GREETS FRIEND, FOE ALIKE AS SESSION CLOSES

Washington, D. C., July 3.—(AP)—Happy and smiling, President Hoover stood in the historic presidential room of the capitol tonight and greeted with impartial cordiality members of congress who have opposed his views during the last fifteen months and those who have supported him.

The President was clad in evening clothes and was accompanied by a little group which had been at the White House for dinner. As word spread through the senate chamber that the chief executive had arrived a procession headed for the presidential room, and for more than ten minutes Mr. Hoover affably greeted senators and representatives.

SUBWAY PLANS FAR ADVANCED, ALDERMEN FIND

Maj. Kelker Tells of the Progress Made.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Much more progress has been made toward a design of a subway, to be built by the city as part of the transportation plan, than the aldermen were aware of until yesterday afternoon.

Maj. R. F. Kelker Jr., engineer for the local transportation committee of the city council, has had 30 engineers, draftsmen and surveyors working since the first week in May. He reported to a subcommittee consisting of Ald. James B. Bowler, Oscar F. Nelson and John Toman yesterday afternoon.

Need More Specifications.

"So far as the engineering staff is concerned," said Maj. Kelker; "we will be ready to begin preparation of working plans and specifications when we reach a decision on the following points: clearance, grade of bore under the Chicago river, the type of track, the platform widths and spacing between Madison and Congress streets, and the special crossover track work."

Maj. Kelker recited in detail the work which has been finished and then continued:

"There are other questions, which do not fall within the jurisdiction of the engineers, which need immediate attention and are prerequisites to subway construction. North State street must either be widened to accommodate four tracks or easements from abutting property owners must be obtained. That part of the thoroughfare is only 66 feet wide.

Must Remove Bridge.

"The second problem is the State street bridge. That is on piling. The present span will have to be removed. If traffic is stopped over this bridge, the completion of the Wabash avenue bridge should be expedited. The third job is the acquisition of certain land which will be necessary either by condemnation or purchase. Within ten days we will be able to report what land is needed and how much of it. The last task is the spreading of the special assessments on the property particularly benefited by the subway."

Out of the mass of detail, figures, maps and drawings, Maj. Kelker submitted two ideas which appealed especially to the aldermen. On these he said:

"On ventilation I obtained the services of Prof. A. C. Willard of the University of Illinois, who designed the ventilating system for the Holland tubes. He has recommended the positive system of air distribution. The plan adopted is to force fresh air into the subways rather than the New York system of attempting to suck the foul air out.

Plan to Absorb Noise.

"On noise reduction we plan to use a tile between the tracks in the bores which will absorb much of the noise."

Maj. Kelker said that he has arranged with Robert Ridgway, chief engineer of the New York board of transportation, to be ready to give engineering counsel as required from time to time.

Chairman Bowler of the subcommittee said that a conference will be held with Walter L. Fisher Monday morning to obtain his services for the committee, as well as his suggestions on procedure.

"Certainly the city council should have the services of George Mason," interposed Ald. Toman. "Corporation Counsel Ettelson should cut out his selfish political squabbles and let us get the best engineer on special assessments available. Ettelson is my friend, but friendship ceases if he holds up subway construction. We ought to start this job as soon as possible."

Suggests Voluntary Contributions.

"There are a number of questions we must take up and decide at once," said Ald. Nelson. "As I remember the Gordon Strong report to the subcommittee headed by Ald. Albert, the property owners agreed to stand for a special assessment of about 30 per cent. Perhaps they would make voluntary contributions of that amount, and we could proceed with the work without waiting for special assessments."

"In addition to all of those suggestions and still others, I am anxious that the companies get started," said Ald. Bowler. "I am confident that a plan to get work started immediately can be worked out to the benefit of every one concerned.

"I believe that if we can credit the expenditures made before consolidation against the pledge to spend $65,000,000 in the first three years, we can greatly expedite the starting of work on extensions and improvements."

Wins by 269,147 Votes.

Proclamation was made by County Judge Jarecki yesterday of the official results of the referendum last Tuesday. These figures show that the ordinance was approved by a majority of 269,147 votes. The votes for and against the ordinance, together with percentages, are as follows:

	Votes.	Per-centage.
For ordinance	325,837	85.18
Against ordinance	56,690	14.82
Totals	382,527	100.00

These percentages show that for every four votes cast against the ordinance there were more than 23 registered for it. The ordinance carried by more than 5¾ to 1 instead of 5½ to 1, as the police returns indicated. The main cause for the difference was the fact that the official returns credited the opponents with 1,522 fewer votes than the police returns.

Jobless Salesman Leaps to Death Under "L" Train

Abraham H. W. Slater, 42 years old, 824 East 53d street, a salesman out of employment, was killed yesterday when he leaped in front of a southbound Englewood elevated train from the station platform at 22d street. Pinned in his hat was a note, reading: "Please call Dorchester 0850. Mrs. Asrier will answer the phone." She was identified later as his sister-in-law. None of the family could give a reason for Slater's act.

HAVE YOU SEEN THIS MAN?

If you have, call up Wabash 4747, the detective bureau, and notify the police that he is at large and where he may be found. The pictures are rogues' gallery photos of Frank Diamond, alias Romano, west side Capone lieutenant, whose name has been mentioned in connection with several murders, but has never been convicted of any of them. He was one of those named as "public enemies" in a report of the crime commission which asked that he and the others be driven from the city.

TRUCK DRIVER FINDS CONVICT IN MATTRESS AT GATES OF PRISON

New York, July 3.—[Special.]—But for the alertness of a keeper detailed to drive a truck, Jack Levy, a 110 pound convict, serving a twenty-five year sentence for robbery, would have escaped from Sing Sing prison today sewed up in a mattress. A package of half a dozen mattresses, in one of which Levy was concealed, had passed the inspection of two keepers, and the truck was about to leave the grounds when the driver, Victor Brown, became suspicious, and Levy was found and locked up.

Levy, also known as Jack Brett, is 44 years old and had served a previous term in Sing Sing. He was received last time on June 13, 1929, having been convicted in the Bronx, and because of his record would not have been eligible to parole until June, 1950. His attempt to escape today earned him two extra years on his twenty-five year sentence.

The mattress factory, which manufactures for the hospitals of New York City, is one of the busiest shops in the prison, and Levy worked there. Truck loads of mattresses are shipped every day, and Levy planned to get out on one of those loads.

With the connivance of other convicts in the shop he was sewed up soon after the shop opened in a mattress stuffed with a preparation called tampico and feathers. A channel for an air passage was left in the mattress stuffing, and Levy provided himself with a safety razor blade with which to cut his way out and a short hammer to fight with in case of discovery. He got as far as the outer gate before he was discovered.

JUDGE ATTACKS THE CONDUCT OF POLL OFFICIALS

The conduct of poll officials of the eighth precinct of the 42d ward on the last primary day was branded as "monstrous" by Circuit Judge Thomas Taylor after it had been testified that the election officials went home shortly after midnight, turning over their records to four strangers who represented themselves as having come from the election commissioner's office. The intruders, so far unidentified, had the records for 45 minutes.

Attorney Urban A. Lavery contended that because of the alleged raid State Senator John T. Joyce received 116 votes to 58 for his opponent, Wallace F. Kirk, who is contesting the nomination of Joyce. Attorney Lavery said the Joyce vote should have been only 102. Judge Taylor will resume the hearing in the vote contest on Monday.

WIELDS HAMMER ON EX-HUSBAND AS HE VISITS HER

Green lives at 1506 North La Salle street, and on Wednesday night he went to visit his former wife, Mrs. Ruth Green, 26 years old, at her home at 6540 Devon avenue. He had tried for six months after the divorce to arrange the meeting. The couple met amicably, police were told, and they attended a movie and Green bought his former wife a new dress. Back at her apartment a dispute arose and Mrs. Green struck Green on the head with a hammer, knocking him unconscious. The police took him to the Henrotin hospital, where his wound was treated.

A dynamite bomb was exploded last night on a window sill of the General Carbonic company plant at 4800 South Richmond street. The damage was estimated at $100. TAX TOTAL CUT NINE MILLION BY NEW VALUATION

County Clerk Sweitzer yesterday announced a drop of $9,377,536 in taxes extended under the reassessment as against the extension in 1927. The 1928 total, which includes real estate, personal property, and railroad taxes, is $219,815,828, as compared with $229,193,364 in 1927.

The reassessment brought a decrease of $15,401,793 in the city and an increase of $6,026,257 in the country town area. This was due to the lowering of valuations in the city and the raising of valuations in the county, Mr. Sweitzer said.

Loss Predictions Vary.

With back taxes and tax forfeitures the 1928 aggregate for the county will reach $233,176,796, Mr. Sweitzer said. In 1927 the aggregate was $7,676,453 higher at $240,853,249. Of the 1927 aggregate only $200,836,387 was collected. Additional small sums have come to the county through the settlement of court actions against high bills in that year.

Officials estimate that the 1928 collection will be approximately $174,881,697, an estimated loss of 25 per cent. The loss in collections for 1927 was approximately 17 per cent. Officials base the increased loss on the theory that many taxpayers, who received higher bills, will refuse to make payments. Advocates of the reassessment in return predict that the loss will be nearer 10 per cent because of general satisfaction over the bills.

Distribution of Taxes.

The following comparison of 1927 and 1928 tax extensions for the principal spending agencies was released by the county clerk:

City	63,881,150	68,936,560
Schools	55,850,379	64,283,824
County	19,964,423	20,913,225
Sanitary district	19,448,392	18,365,059
State	13,016,685	13,941,113
South park	9,768,136	9,983,396
West park	4,292,707	4,225,929
Lincoln park	2,807,382	3,156,505
Linc. park bond	1,277,474	954,332
Forest preserves	4,338,903	3,720,595

County Treasurer Harding announced that only $20,000,000 has been collected on the 1928 taxes. The money is being appropriated as rapidly as possible, he said. The penalty date is July 10. Mr. Harding stated the bulk of the taxes will be collected in a last minute rush to avoid the 1 per cent a month penalty levied after that date.

CONFESSES USING DAUGHTER, 7, AS EXTORTION PAWN

Mrs. Mary Staples, 28 years old, mother of three children, was arrested by Marquette police last night. She was trapped in the act, the police said, of using her eldest daughter, 7 year old Donna, as the pawn in an extortion scheme. Two boarders in her apartment at 2284 Blue Island avenue, John Bizjak, 26 years old, and William Grabitz, 25 years old, were seized with her.

Several days ago Mrs. Staples' landlord, Lawrence Miller, 2254 Blue Island avenue, went to Assistant State's Attorney Daniel A. Covelli with a complaint that Mrs. Staples had threatened to accuse him of attacking Donna unless he gave her title to the premises she occupied, valued at $10,000. Miller persuaded her to reduce her demand to $1,500 cash, he said.

Last night by previous arrangement Miller met Mrs. Staples, Grabitz and Bizjak in his own home. Miller handed over a cashier's check for $500 and $250 in marked currency. He called in a neighbor, Joseph Suma, who signed over to Mrs. Staples a promissory note for $750. When the transaction was completed a squad of six policemen, led by Sergts. John Wall and William Hall, stepped from concealment and arrested the three. According to the police, Mrs. Staples admitted having successfully practiced the same scheme in Milwaukee and Kenosha.

ONLY TEN MURDERED IN LONDON IN 1929; FOUR PAY PENALTY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 3.—Only 10 persons were murdered here, the world's largest city, in 1929, according to the annual report issued today by Lord Byng of Vimy, commissioner of London police. Six persons were arrested, two committing suicide, two being sentenced to death, and two being acquitted. The other four murders, which consisted of the poisoning of three members of a single family and placing of a girl's body on the railroad tracks, are unsolved. Lord Byng said that the average annual murder rate here for the last 20 years is 22 persons.

CHILD GIVES HER FATHER WRONG BOTTLE; HE DIES

Suffering severely from rheumatism, David Freireich, 38 years old, 4740 North Bernard avenue, was prescribed two kinds of medicine, one for internal and one for external use.

On Wednesday Freireich said to his five year old daughter:

"Anette, bring daddy the bottle on the chiffonier"

Anette, proud at the thought that she was waiting on her daddy during his illness, raced into the living room with the bottle. Freireich took a big dose of the medicine. The next moment he was writhing in pain. Yesterday he died at the Lutheran Memorial hospital.

Dr. Louis E. Stern, 4459 North Kedzie avenue, said that Freireich, apparently, swallowed by mistake the medicine intended only for external use.

ORDERS POLICE RESERVES READY TO COMBAT REDS

Alcock Assigns 500 Men to Two Day Task.

Orders mobilizing reserves of the police department for quick action in handling communist demonstrations today and tomorrow were issued last night by Acting Commissioner John H. Alcock. More than 500 patrolmen and their superior officers are to be utilized for the task, operating from west side stations.

The orders come as a result of the published reports that a convention representing unemployed men and women in the United States and Canada was to be held here and that some 10,000 delegates would be present. The Trade Union Unity league already has been refused permission to conduct a demonstration in Union park at Ashland avenue and Washington boulevard.

There are two orders, one dealing with the mobilization for today, and one for tomorrow. Acting Commissioner Alcock in the first order refers to "the proposed communist demonstration for July Fourth," and begins by notifying "each captain in Chicago to be at his station by 8 a. m.

Communist agents last night were scattering handbills which announced places of assembly for today's demonstration. Among those designated were 1919 South Racine avenue, 900 South Paulina street, 3837 South Halsted street, and 420 South Halsted street, the last being the late abode of Horzel Weizenberg, an agitator who was fatally hurt last Saturday after he was ejected from a meeting of union painters. The slogan proclaimed on the handbills was: "On to Union park."

Capt. William Schram, commander of the west park police, who issued the order against the Union park meeting, announced that 30 policemen would be at the park at 8 a. m. prepared to prevent the assemblage.

ASSESS GOTHAM TAXPAYERS 18 BILLION DOLLARS

New York, July 3.—[Special.]—New York City taxpayers were assessed more than 18 billion dollars this year for real estate and personal property, according to figures made public today by the department of taxes and assessments. The figures reveal an increase of more than a billion over 1929.

Manhattan, whose increase in taxation amounts to more than 682 millions, has a greater increase than that of the other four boroughs combined. Tax exemptions for all boroughs this year amount to $5,118,884,605.

Following Manhattan, whose taxpayers this year have been assessed for more than nine billions, Brooklyn is second, with a total of more than four billion 300 million, an increase of more than 179 millions over last year. Queens, third both in increases and totals, was assessed more than two billions, which is more than 148 millions above last year's figure.

The increases in realty tax amounted to more than one billion, compared with a 68 million increase in personal taxes for the five boroughs.

INDICT THREE ON $760,000 INCOME TAX CHARGES

Trenton, N. J., July 3.—[Special.]—Indicted jointly and individually on charges of conspiracy to defraud the government of $760,000 in income tax returns for the period 1923-1927, Harry E. Hooley, Leonard B. Willits, and Charles R. Myers were held in $5,000 bail each by Judge Boyd in the federal court in Camden. They were indicted June 18.

Myers owns the Hotel Breakers in Atlantic City. Willits until recently was chief representative of the United States treasury department in New Jersey and was a special investigator for the Abell Audit and Survey commission. Hooley is a deputy collector of internal revenue.

PERMIT KRAFT, INDICTED OFFICER, TO QUIT GUARD

Keeps Rank Due to Long Service.

Col. Charles J. Kraft, former commander of the 202d coast artillery, whose indictment by the federal grand jury Wednesday resulted in disclosures of a $200,000 Illinois National Guard scandal, has been permitted to resign, retaining his rank.

This announcement was made yesterday by the Chicago office of the 33d division. The resignation was accepted by Col. Richings J. Shand as acting adjutant general.

A board of inquiry headed by Brig. Gen. Abel Davis, appointed by the adjutant general to ascertain whether Col. Kraft was "morally fitted" to retain his post following his suspension last March, recommended that he be permitted to resign with his rank in view of his long record of service.

Wanted Higher Rank.

It was reported yesterday that Col. Kraft at first demurred when apprised of the recommendation of the board and expressed a desire to resign with the rank of brigadier general.

Although embezzlement of state funds in connection with the operation of the Broadway armory, of which Col. Kraft was in charge, equaled that of the federal misappropriations, according to federal authorities, no state criminal action has been instituted. The board of inquiry was appointed only to look into the "moral fitness" of Col. Kraft, according to Brig. Gen. Davis.

Bond for Col. Kraft was set at $10,000 by Federal Judge Wilkerson, who issued a bench warrant. The United States attorney's office was notified yesterday by Attorney James O'Callaghan, of the law firm of Litsinger, Healy and Reid, that Col. Kraft would surrender upon completion of arrangements for bond.

More Witnesses Appear.

Assistant United States Attorney James C. Leaton, who presented the Kraft case to the grand jury, said yesterday that additional witnesses had appeared since the return of the indictment with new charges of corruption at the Broadway armory.

Mr. Leaton said that these witnesses would be questioned further, but that he believed only state funds were concerned in the new charges. He indicated that the additional evidence would be turned over to the state's attorney.

Maj. Gen. Roy D. Keehn, commander of the Illinois National Guard, said: "The commanding general of the Illinois National Guard has nothing to do with state or federal funds that are paid to or collected by members of the National Guard."

Many Injured as Quakes Rock 3 Provinces of India

CALCUTTA, July 3.—(AP)—Earthquakes shook the eastern provinces of India this morning—Bengal, Assam and Burma—causing an undetermined number of injuries and doing much damage to property.

Fragmentary reports indicated that the worst shocks occurred in Assam. In Gauhati nine heavy tremors were recorded within six minutes and slight shocks continued for some time. Many persons were injured, telegraph wires were broken and several buildings were demolished.

Shillong, capital of Assam, reported an earthquake of great intensity at 2:36 a. m. with moderate shocks following at intervals of a few minutes. Train service was interrupted on the Eastern Bengal railway because of damage to bridges and tracks, while telegraph service was entirely out.

Rangoon, Burman capital, learned that an earthquake in the Akyab district had brought on a tidal wave. Reports said much property was damaged, with communications cut off.

The quakes, accompanied by a rumble that frightened the inhabitants, were felt in Calcutta and were so strong that the seismograph of Alipore university was thrown out of order. Observatory officials said the region of their greatest intensity was in West Assam, but some damage was done here.

The building occupied by the high courts in Calcutta received the principal damages. A minaret of the tower over the entrance was fractured and the arches over the corridors of the new structure were cracked.

KILL 2 CHICAGO GANGSTERS IN DETROIT STREET

avenue police that she had no idea what the cause of the shooting could have been.

"I let Cannon have my car last week," she said. "He said he wanted to drive to Detroit on business. I don't know what kind of business. He told me he was a salesman, but he never told me what he sold."

Lieut. McGuire said all three men were known to the police, and that while they were rated as minor gangsters it was possible they had been killed because they were trying to take advantage of the present absence from the city of so many of the Capone and Moran-Aiello gun crews.

SEIZE MORAN BOOZE

Chief Investigator Pat Roche of the state's attorney's office seized a carload of "Bugs" Moran's booze yesterday as a result of converging trails of the killers of Lingle and of the gangsters who attempted to murder Jack Zuta, vice monger of the Moran-Aiello gang.

The liquor, valued at $20,000, was shipped here from Boston, and Roche said his information was that it came from Frank Parker, millionaire bootlegger, whose headquarters are now in Canada. It was in a freight car that was put on a sidetrack at Clinton and Fulton streets and Roche's men waited all day for some one representing the consignee to claim it. No one did.

Raids Leads to Booze Seizure.

Roche said he had been expecting its arrival since the raid on the Moran gang headquarters at 520 North Michigan avenue last Monday which was staged mainly to get evidence against the gangsters responsible for the murder of Lingle. That raid and the coincidental arrest of Zuta followed by a few hours the arrest in Los Angeles of Frank Foster, formerly a Moran gangster. Foster was indicted for the Lingle murder here on Wednesday because he had once owned the gun used to kill Lingle, and preparations were going forward yesterday for his extradition.

Roche questioned the nine men and one woman taken in the raids on Moran's office and hotel suite and he questioned Zuta as well, after which all the prisoners were released although there were admissions that the arrests of Zuta and Grover Dullard —seized at the Michigan avenue office—had some significance in the Lingle investigation.

Police Still Hunt Zuta.

The release of Zuta on Tuesday night was followed by an attempt by gangsters to kill him as he rode in the automobile of Lieut. George Barker at State and Quincy streets. A street car motorman was killed in the shooting and Lieut. Barker was suspended pending investigation. Yesterday Zuta, who vanished during the gun fire, was the object of police search.

A raid on Dullard's room at the Commonwealth hotel resulted in the detectives taking George Hurley, another Moran henchman, to Roche for questioning. He was released, but there were reports yesterday he had played an important part in the killing of Lingle. Roche denied the reports.

Roche Ready for Booze.

"We turned over all the prisoners taken in the Michigan avenue raid for questioning by Chief Special Prohibition Agent Jamie because of the documents we seized showing they disposed of a carload of liquor a day," Roche explained. "We just missed catching them with the last carload they received and we were ready for them today.

"My men hid in the freight car all day but not a soul came near it. At 5 o'clock we decided to turn the car over to the government. It was apparent the syndicate knew we had learned of the car's expected arrival and they abandoned it."

The Moran gang has been dealing with Parker for many years, Roche said. Yesterday Frank J. Parker, former president and manager of distilleries in Canada, was in a Criminal court in Montreal denying he was the Barker from Chicago who had a criminal record and denying that he tried to bribe Canadian government officials to allow his booze to leave Canada without inspection by customs officers.

The shipment here consisted of twenty-four crates, each containing eight cases of whisky or gin. The whisky was labeled "Old Colonel," for which the bootleg price in Chicago is reported to be $80 a case and $6 a pint to the ultimate consumer.

Roche said he understood Bugs Moran was in Chicago, but was in hiding. He was certain Moran was not in Los Angeles, where, it was said, Foster had gone with a gang to establish a brewery. Herman Woeller, who said he formerly was a brewmaster for Moran, admitted to the Los Angeles police that he was to install brewing machinery in Los Angeles for Foster.

Extradition Papers Signed.

Detectives Edward Dudley and John Scherping, who traced Foster to Los Angeles, said they expect to start back to Chicago with him as soon as extradition papers arrive from Illinois. The papers were signed at Springfield yesterday by Acting Gov. Fred Sterling.

Dudley commented on reports that gangsters might attempt to kill Foster on the return journey to seal his lips. He said there were good reasons to take precautions against such an occurrence and that Foster would be permitted to wear a bullet-proof vest.

The two detectives said they knew nothing about a reported search in Los Angeles for James [Red] Forsythe, another suspect in the Lingle murder.

Foster, Woeller, and George Davis, another of those seized in Los Angeles, were still in jail there. Davis, who during the day was identified through fingerprints as Harry Kirschenbaum, wanted in Detroit on two charges of assault to kill, nearly escaped, however. He had walked out of the jail booking office while the police were not looking and was half a block down the street when recaptured.

Foster's Wife Questioned.

Foster's wife was questioned regarding her knowledge of the killing of Lingle, a crime of which her husband now stands charged as a principal, although he is not suspected of being the actual killer. Mrs. Foster said she and her husband left Chicago on June 11, two days after Lingle was shot down in a pedestrian subway at Michigan avenue and Randolph street.

One of her statements was that Foster is the owner of a hotel or apartment building known as the Pershing building [presumably in Chicago] and that it was put up as bail for one of the men implicated in the Valentine day massacre of seven Moran gangsters.

The only persons to be indicted for the massacre were John Scalisi and Albert Anselmi, since slain, and Machine Gun Jack McGurn, who was released on bail because the state was not prepared to try him alone. It was said here yesterday that no building known as the Pershing building was scheduled for McGurn's bail.

McGurn Sentenced to Jail.

McGurn was sentenced to imprisonment in the county jail for one year and fined $300 yesterday by Judge E. I. Frankhauser, who refused him a new trial on a gun carrying charge. A jury convicted McGurn on the testimony of police that they arrested McGurn soon after the murder of Julius Rosenheim, a tipster for a Daily News reporter.

McGurn announced his intention to ask an appeal and he was released on bonds of $10,000. He had nothing to say, either about his conviction or the Moran massacre, the killing of Rosenheim, the Lingle murder, or the shooting at Zuta which resulted in the killing of Elbert Lusader, the street car motorman who was hit by a bullet as he stopped his street car to keep out of the line of fire between Lieut. Barker and the would-be assassins of Zuta.

Alcock Silent on Barker.

Acting Police Commissioner Alcock said yesterday he could not say what would be done about the suspension of Lieut. Barker, which was ordered because Barker was giving Zuta "safe conduct" from the detective bureau to the loop at the time of the shooting. But Alcock did say this:

"There is no cause for police to associate with gangsters or racketeers unless they are acting under orders. No policeman will escort a gangster or racketeer from one place to another or protect gangsters from other gangsters."

Alcock and Chief of Detectives Norton were still investigating the attempt on Zuta's life, he said. Norton wants to know from Zuta who he was expecting to shoot at him, the cause, and whether the gunmen were the expected ones. He wouldn't say whether he thought Zuta was marked for death either because of his connection with the Lingle murder or in expectation he would give information against whoever was responsible for that murder.

$55,825 IN REWARDS.

Rewards totaling $55,825 are offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the slayer of Alfred Lingle, Tribune reporter. The information should be sent to the headquarters established by State's Attorney Swanson in Room 503 Temple building, 77 West Washington street. Telephone State 3729.

CAPONE ENDS MIAMI FUSS OVER HIS GIFT; JUST DOESN'T GIVE IT

Miami, Fla., July 3.—(AP)—Arguments which waxed warm between members of the Miami Civic Tourist club concerning a certain $2,500 donation solicited from "Scarface" Al Capone was settled today—not by the debaters, but by the gang chief himself. Mr Capone is not going to give them a cent.

As members prepared for further discussion on acceptance of the gift, Capone had his lawyers send the club a letter saying the donation would not be forthcoming.

The issue was not settled, however, in time to prevent a breach in the club. Clyde A. Epperson resigned as president last Tuesday and a number of members quit with him after club directors had indicated they would accept Capone's gift. Capone had been solicited by a club worker who appealed to him to contribute for the sake of community progress and civic betterment.

his signature to the repeal and it cannot become law until he does. He was reported to have gone to Lake Geneva for the week-end. Breen said the repeal ordinance would either be vetoed or reconsidered at the next council meeting. Since both the repealed sections are still technically in the code, Breen construed the law as giving full permission to every one to shoot all manner of fireworks.

Before Breen's decision, Commissioner Alcock had announced his men would be instructed to arrest any person firing explosives, and had emphasized the difficulty of handling the situation because of the many roadside fireworks stands just outside the city limits.

Evanston to Have Parade.

Fireworks or not, the northern and western suburbs have planned many official observances of the day's patriotic significance. Under the auspices of the North End Fourth of July corporation, Evanston will celebrate all day, starting with a parade down Central street at 10:30 a. m.

Prizes will be offered for the best decorated homes and athletic contests will be held in the city playgrounds during the afternoon. In the evening Dyche stadium of Northwestern university will be the scene of a war show depicting the battle of Chateau Thierry and staged by the second battalion of the Second infantry from Fort Wayne, Mich. More than 35,000 persons are expected to witness this show which will be commanded by Capt. K. S. Anderson. A pyrotechnic display will be given in the stadium, after sunset.

In Wilmette races will be held on the village green, and Kenilworth will observe its twentieth celebration of the day by a parade in the morning and games in the afternoon at the New Trier High school.

Water sports will be the morning occupation of Winnetka citizens. In the afternoon William B. Moulton, village president, will be master of ceremonies at a celebration and band concert on the village green.

Plans of Western Suburbs.

In Oak Park the high school stadium will be turned over to Oak Park post, No. 15, of the American Legion, where, at 7:30 p. m. patriotic speeches will be made, a band will play, and $5,000 worth of fireworks will be ignited. Charles H. Crysler, president of the village board, will speak.

Elmwood Park citizens will attend a celebration sponsored by its fire department in the evening in Seventh court, between Armitage and Dickens avenue, where the municipal band will play and firemen will stage a water fight.

Riverside will have one of its own citizens, Col. Robert Isham Randolph, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, as the principal speaker in the Riverside ball park on Long Common road at 7:30 p. m. The La Grange Elks lodge will hold a fireworks display in the evening following a baseball game in the afternoon. Mayor Joseph Z. Klenha of Cicero will plant a tree and speak at a meeting at 36th street and 54th avenue, Cicero, at 3 p. m.

Beverly Hills will hold its seventh annual celebration of the day in Ridge park, 95th street and Longwood drive. Athletic games in the morning and a band concert in the afternoon will be followed by a fireworks demonstration in the evening.

Ex-Senator Lewis to Speak.

In the city proper, Rogers Park post 108 of the American Legion will sponsor a celebration in North Shore park, at the foot of Farwell avenue, with a road race, parade, motor boat race, and beach contests. Former Senator James Hamilton Lewis will be the principal speaker.

For the aviation enthusiasts, the Curtiss airport north of Glenview will be the scene of an aerial pageant of progress, which will include a team of stunt aviators. Dale [Red] Jackson, former co-holder of the world's endurance refueling record, will be in the air parade flying a replica of Lincoln Beachey's old Curtiss-Pusher. The stunt will repeat a flight Jackson made over the loop yesterday. The pageant will be given both tomorrow and Sunday.

Several of the Milwaukee railroad trains will be stopped at Lake avenue, one mile north of the Glenview station, to accommodate those who wish to visit the air circus.

An eighteen acre plot of ground at Virginia and Ardmore avenues will be turned over to the river park district today and dedicated as Legion park. A dedication program has been arranged by the North Town post of the American Legion. It includes street dancing, races, and Boy Scout demonstrations.

Holiday Auto Exodus Starts; Million Will Use Highways

BY HAL FOUST.

Pavements leading from Chicago were lighted last night by the headlights of automobiles leaving the city for the holiday week-end. It was the beginning of a three day traffic movement that will carry a crowd estimated at a million persons over the roads of the metropolitan area.

The highways last night were carrying those who made an early start to avoid today's congestion and to get another full day at the lakes, in the woods, at summer cottages or with relatives.

Private car owners, following the example of the motor freight industry, were driving after dark because the pavements of the metropolitan area are inadequate to accommodate all who would use them in daylight.

Find Seventeen Detours.

The headlights flashed on the directional signs of seventeen detours as the strings of automobiles left Chicago. Once on the rural highways, after creeping through the streets of the city and its suburbs, drivers depressed accelerators and the countryside vibrated with the whir of fast motors hurrying holiday passengers on trips of 50, 150 or 250 miles.

This speed, made safe by the modern automobile properly handled on modern pavements, involves hazards on the narrow highways with grade intersections of busy roads. On the forty foot pavements there was the menace from the unskilled or inconsiderate road hog who failed to keep to the right except when passing.

Safety Hints Given.

The National Safety council yesterday issued a bulletin to the nation's 24,000,000 automobile owners, calling attention to the fact that the daily average motor toll in recent years has doubled on the Fourth. The council made the following recommendations:

"Stay in line.

"Drive slowly, especially on unfamiliar roads. Strange hazards lurk on strange highways.

"Don't take anything for granted at grade crossings. Stop, look, listen, and live.

"Take time to read and digest traffic signals and warning signs. They are there for your protection.

"Keep both hands on the steering wheel, your eyes on the road and your mind on your job.

WE DON'T HAVE THOSE OLD 8 mile speed limits NOW

Many states prohibited driving in excess of 8 or 10 miles per hour in "built-up" communities. Twenty miles per hour was once considered highly dangerous. Improvements in the automobile and advances in traffic control have changed all that. ¶ Likewise the constant improvements wrought by Shell in motor lubrication have made higher speeds safe for the automobile engine. That's the important thing about Shell Motor Oil. It is always ahead of requirements . . . ready now for next year's car. ¶ Low-temperature refining preserves all of the rich lubricating elements of Nature's best-balanced crude. No emergency, no unusual demand of the motor ever finds Shell Motor Oil lacking in protective qualities. No wonder motorists are turning to Shell in ever increasing numbers.

LAWYERS DEBATE BAR'S STAND ON PROHIBITION POLL

Tell Why Chicago Body Refuses to Vote.

With six of the largest bar associations in the country committed by resolution to unconditional repeal of the eighteenth amendment and with the American Bar association preparing a poll of its 30,000 members, expressions were sought yesterday on the position of the Chicago and Illinois state bar associations. Both have tabled proposals for a vote, while the New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Detroit, St. Louis and San Francisco organizations balloted against prohibition.

Three efforts have been made to force an expression of sentiment from the Chicago Bar association, and one has been considered by the state body. While the National Voluntary Committee of Lawyers, a New York organization for prohibition repeal, is preparing another petition for a test vote, Chicago and Illinois lawyers debated possibilities of its adoption.

Three Attempts Fail.

The Chicago association was first asked to take a vote in the spring of 1928 by a member, Mitchell D. Follansbee of the firm of Follansbee, Shorey & Schupp. The resolution was shelved by a board of managers, headed by Carl R. Latham. A second attempt was made several months later by the national voluntary committee when Sidney S. Gorham was president and a third last winter, while Francis X. Busch was president, by the National Association Against Prohibition. Both were failures.

The national voluntary committee also offered a resolution to the state organization in the fall of 1928. This was dismissed by the board of governors. Two weeks ago a group of prominent Chicago attorneys, members of both bars, but acting independently, sponsored a movement to enlist Illinois lawyers in the movement opposed to the prohibition amendment.

Lawyers who joined the movement have criticized the Chicago association for its failure to poll its membership. They hold that it is the duty of lawyers to deliver an opinion on legislation which has been attacked and made the subject of contention. Attorney Charles Y. Freeman, one of the committee members, defined its function as "to make clear to the public that the 18th amendment constitutes an overextension of federal power with the resulting abrogation of inherent civil rights."

May Change Position.

Charles F. Megan, first vice president of the Chicago association, said the board of managers made its decision solely on the stand that such a poll would be beyond the purview of the organization. He declared that wet and dry sentiment had not entered into discussion of the proposals. Other officials hinted that the position may have to be changed in view of the action of other legal bodies.

"The former decisions were purely the result of an established policy," said Clarence P. Denning, executive secretary. "If the board of managers shifts ground on the strength of the other polls it may adopt the policy of the American Bar association. That organization is having two polls, one to determine whether members want to vote, and the other, which depends on the first, the vote itself."

Can't Get True Expression.

A prominent member of the state association revealed that it had voted against a poll because the board of governors felt that a true expression of opinion could not be obtained. He explained that even though the vote were secret downstate lawyers, who are forced by community sentiment, might vote against repeal, though such vote would be against their opinion. Many lawyers agreed that vote of both bodies would be decidedly wet, but declared that the polls would have no definite value.

COAST GUARDS BATTLE LIQUOR VESSEL IN BAY

Philadelphia, Pa., July 3.—(AP)—The Philadelphia Record says that machine gun bullets and one pound shells whistled across Delaware bay early today as the crew of a coast guard cutter carried on a running "artillery battle" with a speedy rum ship.

After a three mile chase, the Record says, the powerful 45 foot cruiser, believed to have been the Helena, sister ship of the Daisy T., recently found scuttled off Cape May, sped away from its pursuers and disappeared.

"The Helena," the Record says, "has been running between Delaware bay and a point 45 miles out at sea, where 15 large ships, loaded with liquor, have been anchored for days. A coast guard plane several days ago flew out to the floating liquor warehouse and, swooping low, took photographs of the squadron."

MIX DAUGHTER WHO ELOPED TO LOSE ALLOWANCE

Hollywood, Cal., July 3.—[Special.]—Mrs. Ruth Mix Gilmore, 17, who eloped recently and married a young actor, will have to get along in the future without the $250 a month that had been paid to her by her father, Tom Mix, cowboy actor. Superior Judge Myron Westover today decided in favor of the father's action to relieve himself of paying future support money. The judge told the girl's lawyers it has become her husband's duty to support her.

Russell to Be Withdrawn from Haiti; Stimson Says

Washington, D. C., July 3.—(AP)—Secretary Stimson announced today that Brig. Gen. John H. Russell, American high commissioner to Haiti, would be withdrawn after the inauguration of a new president to succeed Eugene Roy in the fall. This is another step of the program to settle unrest in the island. President Hoover has nominated Carl Colvin of Illinois to succeed Dr. George F. Freeman as head of the service technique of Haiti.

WINS DIVORCE

MRS. HELEN M. KOHLSAAT.

Mrs. Helen Thorne Kohlsaat, second divorced wife of Gordon Thorne, wealthy clubman, yesterday won a divorce from Dietrich Kohlsaat, investment broker. Superior Judge Sabath granted the decree when she testified her husband struck her during a bridge game last April and has been cruel on other occasions.

Attorney John McMahon said a property settlement had been arranged out of court. Mrs. Kohlsaat, who lives at 431 Oakdale avenue, was given permission to resume her maiden name of Helen Maginnis. The couple were married Feb. 12, 1928, and separated two months ago.

WOMEN CLOSE SALOON AFTER U. S. FAILS 'EM

Solve Effacement of a Speakeasy.

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 3.—[Special.]—The women of St. Albans were jubilant tonight, but the men were sad of countenance. Meanwhile there is a dark, deserted look about one of New York's 33,000 speakeasies, all because a little group of mothers took matters in hand.

The "blind tiger" of St. Albans community was right at the back door of a suburban public school, and even in this modern day the Parent-Teacher association didn't consider it the proper influence for the younger generation.

First the women asked their husbands about the place. "Speakeasy, no indeed," they advised, "it is just a place where they sell good near beer."

Calls the Cops.

She called a cop. The cops raided the place twice. Yes, they did. They made a lot of noise and took out a couple of bottles of beer, the mothers said, but the place ran on.

The next appeal was made to federal agents. The dry agents came and looked and left and the speakeasy still flourished.

The Mothers' club telegraphed President Hoover, the attorney general, and advised the federal prosecutor in Brooklyn. They got action from all three places. The President notified the department of justice, the department of justice notified the Brooklyn prosecutor and the prosecutor notified the head of the dry unit there. But the speakeasy continued to operate.

Try Direct Action.

Mrs. Wallace said she decided to venture into the speakeasy. The owner, she said, spoke scornfully of cops, dry agents and the like, but admitted that having the women on his trail worried him. He offered to compromise. Mrs. Wallace reported—he would lock his back door so the children could not see their fathers at the bar.

Mrs. Wallace went right back to P. T. A. headquarters and gathered her clan. They stood on the sidewalk in front of the speakeasy and threatened to picket the place. The owner took one look and closed up.

The me nof St. Albans are hopeful, however, of the future.

CHICAGO NEGRO YOUTH AT WEST POINT FOR TEST

Dispatches from West Point, N. Y., announced yesterday that Denton J. Brooks Jr. of Chicago, Negro appointee of Congressman Oscar De Priest for entrance to the United States Military academy, had arrived at West Point and was awaiting physical examination.

Brooks, whose family lives at 3256 Rhodes avenue, prepared for West Point by attending Lewis Institute and Crane college, winning sufficient credits to permit him to enroll without an academic test. He is 5 feet 5 inches tall and weighs 133 pounds, physically inferior to his predecessor, Alonzo Parham, who was dropped from the academy last winter for deficiency in mathematics.

22 Infantile Paralysis Cases Alarm Los Angeles

Los Angeles, Cal., July 3.—[Special.]—Twenty-two infantile paralysis cases reported to the city health offices since July 1, have caused alarm. The disease began to spread in May. Eighty-four cases were reported in Los Angeles in June. Outside the city there were 75 cases in the county. A partial computation shows twenty dead in 34 days in the affected area.

BOMBAY POLICE FIGHT "BOYCOTT ARMY"; 16 HURT

Woman Revolt Leader Is Thrown in Jail.

BY CHARLES DAILEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BOMBAY, July 3.—Riots, strikes, and parades of shouting Nationalists dominated this city today. The most serious clash occurred in front of a large British store, when police wielding bamboo sticks and rubber "billies" charged a mob of several hundred pickets in an effort to clear the street for traffic. Fourteen congress volunteers and two policeman were hurt. It was the fourth day of "Boycott week."

Arrest Woman Leader.

Nationalist flags flew from almost every housetop. Among those arrested today was Mrs. Perin Captain, wife of a leading lawyer, president of the women's provincial congress committee. A warrant was also issued for the arrest of Mrs. Livalati Munshi, vice president, now in Poona. Mrs. Captain, before entering jail, sent the following message to the volunteers:

"Keep the flag flying and be true to the creed of nonviolence. Carry on the struggle with courage and show yourself worthy followers of our saintly leader."

Bare Plan of "Attack."

The situation here is intensified by the publication of resolutions adopted by the "war council" of the All-India congress before the arrest of former President Nehru. These include one challenging Great Britain for fixing the exchange price of the rupee and advises the exchange of notes, or rupees into gold.

The associated dealers of drugs, medicines, and perfumeries of Bombay today notified 150 manufacturers in Great Britain that their products will be banned for three months as a protest against the repressive policy of the government. The remaining cinemas have been closed and all but one college have suspended classes, and this is being picketed, while the picketing of liquor shops has trebled.

Most factories and nearly all of the business houses, including the stock exchange, are still closed.

India to Hear King.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 3.—A drastic new orientation of the British government's Indian policy now appears inevitable to observers reading the handwriting on the political wall in the last few days. The belief that Great Britain is prepared to assume a much more conciliating attitude toward India than that recommended by the Simon commission is widespread.

The speech which King George will deliver next Wednesday at the opening of the new India house on the Strand is being awaited with the greatest eagerness. Special efforts are being made by British authorities in India to arrange a radio hookup throughout India, with loud speakers everywhere.

SON MAY SAVE FATHER IN 'BOMB RING' CONVICTION

CRIMINAL COURT.

James McGurn, carrying concealed weapons, sentenced to 1 year in the county jail and fined $300; Robert Lewis and Frank Kelly, robbery, sentenced to 1 year to life each in the penitentiary by Judge E. I. Frankhauser.

William Pickett, rape, sentenced to 30 years in the penitentiary by Judge Walter P. Steffen.

Vito Ficke, 14 years old, may be able to save his father, Steve Ficke, 41 years old, from a sentence of 5 to 25 years in the penitentiary for transportation and possession of bombs. Judge McGoorty in the Criminal court yesterday told Attorney John Johntry, representing Ficke, that producing the son to tell where he got the bombs, if not from his father, was the only thing which might cause the judge to change his mind about overruling a motion for a new trial.

VITO FICKE.

Ficke and Mike Casselli, 35 years old, were convicted months ago by a jury in the courtroom of the late Judge Gemmill. They had sold bombs to Joseph Altmeier, an undercover investigator for the state's attorney's office. Altmeier is dead of wounds suffered in a north side shooting. Judge Gemmill died before passing on the new trial motion and Judge McGoorty has taken jurisdiction.

"I'm going to let the Supreme court decide," said Judge McGoorty. "If Ficke was innocent he should have brought his son into court. I would still listen to the testimony of the son if the defense will produce him."

The defense attorney said he would attempt to find the boy by Wednesday, the time allowed by the judge. Young Ficke disappeared soon after the arrest of the so-called bombing ring.

Carlo Oliviero, 29 years old, and Joseph Cerra, 27, two convicted bombers, were sentenced to 11 months each in the county jail yesterday by Judge Otto Kerner.

Youth's Death in Canoe Mishap Found Accidental

A verdict of accidental death was returned by a coroner's jury yesterday in the case of Frederick Johnson, 22 years old, 1127 North Eighth avenue, Maywood, who was drowned in the Desplaines river Wednesday night while canoeing with two young women and another youth. The witnesses, Miss Catherine Farmer, 19 years old, 626 North Leclaire avenue; Miss Tyloe Jones, 23 years old, 1125 North Fifth avenue, Maywood, and Walter Martin, 23 years old, of Maywood, testified that Johneon, who had a weak heart, suffered a fainting spell and toppled out of the canoe.

DECISION NEARS ON BILLINGS AND MOONEY PARDON

Gov. Young Considers Court's Opinion.

San Francisco, Cal., July 3.—(AP)—The thirteen year old question of liberty for Thomas J. Mooney and Warren K. Billings, trade unionists serving the fourteenth year of life sentences in state prison for the 1916 Preparedness day parade bombing in San Francisco, tonight rested with Gov. C. C. Young at Los Angeles.

It was placed before him through a decision by the state Supreme court here on an application by Billings for pardon. No hint of the contents of the 30 page judicial opinion was given, but the governor said it will be made public simultaneously at Sacramento and Los Angeles executive offices as soon as a copy reaches the capital, probably some time tomorrow.

Decision Next Week.

"Most likely there will be no announcement of my decision until the first of next week," the governor said.

Ten persons were killed and forty injured July 22, 1916, in an explosion during a Preparedness day parade in San Francisco. Mooney and his wife, Billings, and two others were arrested within a week. Billings was convicted three months later and sentenced to life imprisonment for second degree murder. In February, 1927, Mooney was convicted of murder and sentenced to execution. The others were freed.

Labor agitation protesting the Mooney convictions extended to various parts of the world in the summer of 1917, culminating in a demonstration before the American embassy in Russia. President Wilson then appointed a mediation commission, which reported that Mooney did not have a fair trial, and the President urged Gov. Stephens to grant a retrial.

Efforts to Change Sentence.

Mooney's conviction was upheld by the Supreme court March 1, 1918, and in November the governor, acting upon a presidential plea, commuted Mooney's death sentence to life imprisonment. In 1926 an unsuccessful plea was made to Gov. Richardson for a pardon. Soon thereafter Gov. Young was inaugurated.

Frank P. Walsh, New York attorney, in 1928 urged Gov. Young to review the case, and finally Billings applied to the state Supreme court for a pardon.

The governor has made it known his action based upon the Supreme court decision in the Billings case also would embrace the Mooney case.

WOMAN KILLED, 3 INJURED WHEN AUTO HITS POLE

Mrs. Harry Koch, 35 years old, 4142 North La Porte avenue, was killed and her husband and two others, Charles Bonner, 5018 North Hermitage avenue, and Walter Sullivan, who lived with the Kochs, escaped with injuries last night when the car driven by Bonner was hurled into the ditch against a telegraph pole by a tire blowout on the River road near Touhy avenue, Des Plaines. The injured were taken to the Westlake Memorial hospital. Mrs. Koch's death increased the Cook county motor toll to 472 since Jan. 1.

Ray Vielagmy, 27 years old, 4121 South Albany avenue, was arrested by Chicago Lawn police last night, charged with driving while intoxicated after his truck crashed into two automobiles at Archer and Cicero avenues. The automobiles were demolished but the drivers escaped injury. Vielagmy attempted to run away but was picked up by a detective bureau squad. His truck can carry 12 autos.

26 LIQUOR INJUNCTIONS ASKED.

Ottawa, Ill., July 3.—[Special.]—Injunctions to close twenty-six La Salle county buildings for liquor violations were asked today in suits started here by Russell O. Hanson, La Salle county state's attorney.

ASK PERMIT TO BUILD SHORT WAVE RADIO, TELEPHONE STATION

New York, July 3.—(AP)—A permit for the construction of a short wave radio-telephone station in California has been requested by the American Telephone and Telegraph company, an announcement said today.

The completion of the station, the site of which has not been selected, will mark the first step in extending transoceanic telephone service into the Pacific region. The first regular service will be provided to the island of Oahu, in the Hawaiian group, whose inhabitants are expected to be within the United States voice range by 1932.

The proposed radio link to Hawaii will make possible telephone conversation between such distant points as Honolulu and Portland, Me., and will extend the talking range from the United States 2,100 miles westward.

The radio station facilities at the Hawaiian end are to be provided by R. C. A. Communications, Inc.

PRIVATE YACHT RAMMED BY RUM CHASER IN DARK

Philadelphia, Pa., July 3.—[Special.]—The government rum chaser No. 183 from Cape May, said to have been running without lights, rammed and wrecked the 30 foot cabin cruiser Arbutus late last night in the Delaware river, about 38 miles below this city.

The cruiser, according to its owner, Arthur T. Klatt of this city, who with a party of five friends was aboard, is a complete loss and the damage is placed at $10,000.

"We were running along with all our lights burning brightly," said Mr. Allen today. "Suddenly out of the darkness came this big rum chaser, absolutely without lights. It headed straight for us. We shouted and sounded our horn, but the next thing we knew there was a crash. The bow of the craft smashed into us amidships, cut into the boat deeply, and crushed its ribs."

The Arbutus had a canoe towing astern and the entire party transferred to it without mishap as the cruiser began to settle low in the water. The rum chaser took them aboard after some maneuvering in the darkness.

The rescued party stayed on the government vessel all night and put in at this city shortly after noon today.

The 75th Anniversary of Crane Co.

It was the 4th of July, 1855. In a modest frame structure at Canal and Fulton Streets, Chicago, R.T. Crane drew from the fire a crucible of molten brass and poured his first castings. Humble in origin, a business was born destined to greatness by the resolution of the founder, a creed of powerful simplicity:

"I am resolved to conduct my business in the strictest honesty and fairness; to avoid all deception and trickery; to deal fairly with both customers and competitors; to be liberal and just toward employees; and to put my whole mind on the business."

By this resolution, steadfastly adhered to, the little structure has expanded into factories that now cover 375 acres and into branches and sales offices in 196 cities of United States and foreign lands.

The shadow of the founder, R. T. Crane, has lengthened into a globe-girdling institution with more than 20,000 employees.

The first simple castings poured seventy-five years ago have grown into more than 33,000 Crane products that serve mankind throughout the world... They serve in city homes, humble as well as pretentious, freeing families from the evils of insanitation, from kitchen drudgery, from winter's chill... They serve in rural communities, releasing farmers and their wives from the discomforts and labor imposed by the lack of running water...

They serve in industry, answering every problem of valves and piping for carrying and controlling oil, gas, air, steam, and water.

The Crane creed has been the inspiration for this service. It has been the touchstone by which every subsequent Crane policy has been tested; the secret of the trust evoked among engineers, architects, contractors, and home owners, for every product that bears the Crane name.

Yet whatever progress has been made is accounted only a beginning of a greater growth, a deeper engineering research, a broader service to mankind.

SOUTHERN CROSS IN SALT LAKE ON WAY TO OAKLAND

Commander Tells of Hop from Chicago.

BY MAJ. CHAS. KINGSFORD-SMITH.
(Commander of the Southern Cross.)

Salt Lake City, Utah, July 3.—[Special.]—We crossed the plains today in our own covered wagon. The Southern Cross took off from the Curtiss airport at Chicago this morning at 7:45 [central daylight time] and after a rather bumpy trip came down with the aid of landing lights at the Salt Lake municipal airport at 9:15 p. m. [Chicago time] tonight.

The distance is about 1,200 miles and includes about every kind of flying I ever have done except oceans. I want to say at the start that the lads who fly the mail night and day, summer and winter, over that stretch do a job of work.

First Trip Over Route.

It was the first trip over this route for any of us. M. E. Van Dyk, one of our party who is to have the longest air line on the K. L. M. lines between Amsterdam, Holland, and Batavia, agrees with me that the going from New York to Chicago and from Chicago here offers about every problem that flying can present.

The work of the Yankee mail flyers is known wherever aviation is talked about in the world, but one has to fly here to learn just what they are doing.

I suppose that for seventy-five or a hundred years folks have been telling their friends about coming west after they have made the trip, and all we have done today is to repeat a journey that has been made thousands of times. Yet I have the temerity to attempt to tell something about it.

Circle Hunter Boys.

After getting into the air this morning we circled about for a farewell look at the Hunter boys, who seem determined to keep flying from now on. Then we set a course a little south of west toward Iowa City. We had a helping wind at the start and the old Southern Cross flew over Illinois and Iowa in jig time.

The Mississippi river—a disappointingly small stream where we crossed—passed beneath, and then we began the long, steady climb across Nebraska. Here the winds shifted and we were fighting them much of the rest of the way.

I never have seen the wind come from so many directions in a single flight.

The route was simple enough, with airway markers and beacons every few miles. However, we did not always stick to them. We tried short cuts and then we had to dodge about when we got to the mountains to avoid the storms.

TIE GLIDER TO LINER

New York, July 3.—[Special.]—Two young aviators from Long Island set out on the Cosulich liner Saturnia for Europe tonight to attempt the first trans-Atlantic glider flight.

The aviators, Robert N. Lewis, 26 years old, of Flushing, and Hugh Keavney, 28, of East Elmhurst, took with them a fragile appearing little biplane with a 31 foot wing spread and a hull of duraluminum in which they hoped to soar high above the liner.

Storm Halts Test.

As the vessel passed Ambrose light the tiny aircraft was let over the side with Lewis and Keavney in its cramped little cockpit. A tow rope connected it with the liner. They had expected that the hardest job of the trip would be a takeoff, and it proved impossible to get the glider into the air. Their task was complicated by a driving storm which suddenly descended and, tired and soaked, the aviators finally gave up the attempt until morning.

Their hope is to remain in the air once they are aloft continuously until the Saturnia tows them to Gibraltar on July 11. They admitted before their departure, however, that their success on the east bound trip was problematical because the prevailing westerly winds will cut down their air speed. The Saturnia has a speed of 19 knots, roughly 21 land miles an hour, and the glider requires an air speed of 35 miles an hour to stay up. Thus strong tail winds would force the little plane down.

Expect Success Westbound.

Lewis and Keavney expected, if the attempt was successful to fly 1,500 feet above the liner at times, and to keep in communication with Capt. Roberto Stuparich by telephone. They also carried code flags for signaling by day and a flashlight for night. They have waterproof flying suits and Kapok life preservers for use if they are forced into the sea.

New Face Powder Now the Fashion

"Wouldn't you, too, like a face powder that will keep shine away—stay on longer—spread smoothly—not clog the pores—and always be so pure and fine?" asks Gene Brady, charming stage beauty. She found this kind of face powder in MELLO-GLO, made by a new French process that brings the youthful bloom—will not irritate the skin or cause that pasty, flaky look. It is surely a wonderful Face Powder.

BROTHERS IN AIR 22 DAYS; FLY ON DESPITE SCARES

Aids Are Alarmed by Motor Troubles.

ers and these are relayed by Albert and Walter to their brothers in the air. What effect these offers are having on the flyers' determination to stay in the air is not generally known, for most of the messages dropped from the plane are kept secret.

Newspaper men had some difficulty yesterday in distinguishing the notes dropped by John and Kenneth from those carefully composed by a score of promoters who tried to further various ventures by sending up messages to be thrown back to the ground by the Hunter boys.

Walter made known yesterday that there had been a large offer from a movie concern to appear in the talkies and there have been other offers from vaudeville circuits, beverage manufacturers and companies in the aviation trade. The reward of $100 an hour for every hour aloft after the former record of 420 hours was passed, offered by an oil company, stopped yesterday after 100 "overtime" hours had been passed, bringing the Hunters $10,000.

"Good for Two Weeks More."

John was somewhat put out yesterday over rumors that circulated saying that "Beans," as Kenneth, the youngest of the flying pair, is known, was getting tired of his lot and was ready to come down. "That's slush," he said in a note. "Beans and I are good for another two weeks."

Most of the genuine messages from the flyers were identified by a goodly sprinkling of good old fashioned Anglo Saxon expletives, for the strain of three weeks in the air sometimes moves the airmen to strong terms. Old flyers who know something of the rigors of keeping a plane in the air over long periods said this demonstration of nerves was only natural.

When a minor disagreement developed between the refueling brothers and the endurance flyers, a note is promptly tossed out with a repetition of their demand and the threat: "Hurry up or we'll set the ship down right away." The brothers in the air always win.

Judge Delays Action.

Fears that the plane would be brought down by a court order arising from a petition for an injunction and receivership were allayed yesterday when Judge Michael Feinberg of the Circuit court decided he would wait until the boys landed to hear the case.

A new figure appeared at the field yesterday.

He was "Mr. Perkins of St. Louis," Albert said, explaining that he had been selected as "public contact man."

So when the reporters approach Albert to ask: "How do the boys look today?" Albert replies:

"See Mr. Perkins."

OUSTS DAUGHTER, WINS PROBATION.

HUSTON MAY GO BEFORE LEADERS OF G. O. P. MEET

Session Is Postponed to Next Thursday.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 3.—[Special.]—President Hoover's determination to remove Claudius Huston from the chairmanship of the Republican national committee before the opening of the congressional election campaign caused a sudden change today in the program announced by the chairman last week.

Republican national headquarters issued an announcement of the postponement of the meeting of national committee officers with the chairman of the senatorial and congressional committees which Mr. Huston had called for next Monday. The announcement quoted the following telegram Huston sent to those invited to the conference:

"Because of holiday engagements some of those invited to the meeting called for Monday find it inconvenient to attend. The meeting has therefore been postponed to Thursday, July 10, at the same hour. I hope you may find it possible to be present at that time."

White House Reaches Him.

It transpired today that the White House got into communication yesterday with Huston who was in New York City. He was asked when it would be convenient for him to come to Washington to see the President. He explained that he could not conveniently come at once because of an important business engagement but stated that he could be here the first of next week.

Republican leaders regard this development as an indication that Mr. Hoover has decided to take effective steps for the removal of the Republican national chairman and assume that Mr. Huston also considered it notice that his days in office are numbered. They think that is the reason Huston postponed the conference until Thursday, by which time it is likely he will be out.

Whether the President will tell Huston personally that his resignation is desired is a matter of animated speculation among the politicians. Mr. Hoover has sent numerous emissaries to Huston to say that the President desired him to resign, but to each one Huston has said he will do so only when the President himself asks his resignation directly.

Moses Threatens to Quit.

Capitol Hill was buzzing with gossip today concerning the reported threat of Senator George H. Moses [Rep., N. H.] to resign the chairmanship of the senatorial campaign committee if he were to be deprived of the allocation of the $250.000 budgeted by the national committee for the election of Republican senators.

The decision of Joseph R. Nutt, the treasurer of the national committee, and Theodore Gary, treasurer of the senatorial committee, to eliminate Moses from control of the purse strings is said to be in pursuance of the determination of the administration to give no aid and comfort to Republican insurgents.

NEED BALDWIN'S ILLINOIS REPORT ON SENATE RACE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 3.—[Special.]—William Hunter Baldwin, chief sleuth for the special senate campaign expenditures committee, will be retained by the committee until he completes a report of his investigations into the recent McCormick-Deneen senatorial contest in Illinois, it was announced today.

Called before an executive meeing of the committee this morning, Baldwin, alleged head of the klan's secret service organization, is said to have admitted connections with the order in the past but to have denied that he now holds any high official post.

Senator G. P. Nye [Rep. N. D.], chairman of the committee, said that Baldwin, with his assistant in the Illinois investigation, E. M. Daniel of Virginia, would compile the data gathered in Illinois and prepare reports to guide the committee in the public hearings at Chicago on July 14.

2D G. W. NORRIS, GROCERY CLERK, OUT FOR SENATE

Lincoln, Neb., July 3.—(AP)—The Republican primary contest for selection of a candidate for United States senator in Nebraska went into a jumble today when a second George W. Norris, a Broken Bow grocery clerk, announced his candidacy.

This candidate with name and initials identical with those of the veteran Nebraska senator whom he seeks to unseat in a six sided primary race, first filed for the office of railway commissioner, but later switched to the senatorial race, followers here of the present senator were advised.

Attorney General O. A. Sorensen, spokesman for Senator Norris immediately prepared to demand a court order compelling a distinct designation between the two candidates by manipulation of either names or initials.

"Give me liberty to know, to utter and to argue freely according to my conscience, above all other liberties."
—Milton.

"AND THE PURSUIT OF HAPPINESS."

"We hold these truths to be self-evident: That all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness."

Dr. Chinard, bringing a French view to the life of Jefferson, says that the boldest idea in the Declaration of Independence was that people had a right to happiness under government. The French political and social philosophers were too pessimistic, he says, to reach for such an ideal of life. They asked only that government make life less miserable. The doctrine that the pursuit of happiness was an inalienable right and that government must respect it was Jefferson's. He himself permitted the doubt that they would find it, but the search for it was their right.

If a New Englander had written the Declaration he probably would have stopped with life and liberty. The Puritans questioned the virtue of happiness. Often they denied it and suppressed the pursuit. It was the way to damnation. It was frivolity. Virginia was not afraid of laughter. Washington was the most dignified man in the colonies, but he loved dancing, balls, dinner parties, horse racing, fox hunting, his friends about him, and his wine.

Another Virginian, George Mason, had got to the same idea before the continental congress passed on Jefferson's. His was in the Virginia Declaration of Rights, adopted June 12, 1776:

"All men are by nature equally free, and have inherent rights, of which, when they enter into a state of society, they cannot, by any compact, deprive or divest their posterity; namely, the enjoyment of life and liberty, with the means of acquiring and possessing property, and pursuing and obtaining happiness and safety."

When Jefferson came to write it in the Declaration of Independence he polished up his sentences and balanced his phrases with greater skill, but it will be observed that Mason was more optimistic. He conceived success in the pursuit and declared for mankind the right to obtain happiness. Jefferson merely dispatched the runner on the open road.

Misery had been the gift of princes to their subjects and it was the reasonable expectation of the masses in caste systems of society. Caste had not made a foothold in America, and it was not to be allowed to do so. There was only one great title in any of the colonies and that was of Whig nobility, the Fairfaxes of the parliamentary party against the crown. There were superior people, but the finest aristocrats were the best republicans.

Virginia was a pleasant place where it seemed possible for happiness at least to be pursued, with Jefferson, or even to be obtained, with Mason. The idea that the equality of man was a self-evident truth appeared later to contain more sarcasm than sincerity in Virginia and elsewhere, but in the terrific denunciation of George III. Jefferson had written a paragraph which was taken out:

"He has waged cruel war against human nature itself, violating its most sacred rights of life and liberty in the persons of a distant people who never offended him, captivating and carrying them into slavery in another hemisphere, or to incur miserable death in their transportation thither. This piratical warfare, the opprobrium of infidel powers, is the warfare of the Christian king of Great Britain. Determined to keep open a market where men should be bought and sold, he has prostituted his negative for suppressing every legislative attempt to prohibit or to restrain this execrable commerce. And, that this assemblage of horrors might want no fact of distinguished dye, he is now exciting those very people to rise in arms among us, and to purchase that liberty of which he has deprived them by murdering the people on whom he also obtruded them; thus paying off former crimes committed against the liberties of one people with crimes which he urges them to commit against the lives of another."

This did not appear in the final draft because, as Jefferson wrote, it was disapproved by "some southern gentlemen whose reflections were not yet matured to the full abhorrence of that traffic." To most of the revolutionists slavery was already a plague and threatening the ruin of the regions where it existed. King Cotton later put it on its feet economically and, of course, sentimentally.

WINDOW DRESSING.

The opposition of Lords Jellicoe and Beatty to the naval treaty is being cited by advocates of the treaty as argument for adoption. It is argued that if naval experts of Great Britain and Japan are against the treaty we ought to be for it. An ingenuous notion which is not likely to be overlooked abroad. The treaty might be thoroughly inadvisable for England and Japan and equally unprofitable for us, but if it were profitable for England and Japan, as it most obviously is, and our acceptance eagerly desired, as we don't doubt it is, nothing is more likely than a play upon our gullibles in the dramatic form of an ineffectual opposition. The criticisms by Bridgeman, Jellicoe, and Beatty read to us like window dressing and we think they are intended for our consumption. The British admirals' protest against the reduction of cruisers from fifty cannot be taken seriously by any one who gives a moment's thought to the present tax situation in Great Britain, and there is no likelihood that parliament will take it so.

ENGINEERS AND LAWYERS FOR THE SUBWAY.

The city council has to pass a subway ordinance to fulfill its part of the contract embodied in the traction ordinance. The building of subways, as the citizens' committee has said in its letter to the aldermen, presents complicated problems of engineering and of law. It is important that they be acted upon promptly, and just as important that they be solved correctly, for in a large measure the first subway ordinances will serve as precedents for those which follow.

There is only one way to get sound engineering and legal advice and that is to retain lawyers and engineers of experience, ability, and standing. Second raters will not do. Men whose claim to employment is their political affiliations will not do.

The ordinance which the voters approved on Tuesday fixes little more than the approximate routes to be followed by the subways downtown. The plans have yet to be drawn. The arrangements for the convenience and comfort of the passengers are still to be determined. The cost of the work will be met only in part from the traction fund. The rest must come from property owners, either by voluntary contribution or by special assessment, and either method will require careful legal work not only to assure the sums required for present building but also to preserve the rights of the city for future subway construction. The difficult question of determining who shall pay the costs of moving the utilities now in the streets must be decided.

In deciding the many questions which will arise the aldermen will have to seek technical advice. They will not do justice to themselves if they do not retain the best men available.

AN EXPERIMENT IN UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE.

The prevalence of unemployment in this country has renewed the pressure for some form of unemployment insurance. Unquestionably, unemployment presents a problem of utmost seriousness, not only to the individual out of a job or fearful that he will be deprived of his income but also to society itself. When men are laid off purchasing power declines, and this is promptly reflected in decreased business all around. Unemployment breeds unemployment. Political and social disturbances might follow a prolonged depression.

In Europe, and notably in England, a solution has been sought in enforced insurance to which the state is a heavy contributor. The results have not been wholesome. Idleness has been rewarded and the drain on the public treasury has been heavy. Bureaucratic administration has added its irritations and the political pressure for increased doles has been constant.

A different solution of the problem, and one which we believe accomplishes all that might be expected of state insurance without many of its disadvantages, has been proposed recently by the General Electric company. The experiment will be watched with interest. An insurance fund will be set up when requested by 60 per cent of the employés in any branch. The employé, when working half time or more, agrees to pay into the fund 1 per cent of his earnings over a period of three years. The company will match that contribution dollar for dollar and in addition guarantee interest of 5 per cent to the fund. If the employé is laid off temporarily he will receive half of his wages, but not more than $20 a week for ten weeks. Special provisions cover periods of abnormal and prolonged unemployment.

The plan presumes, as it well may, that periods of industrial depression in the United States and in the electrical industry are not likely to be prolonged. It assumes also that, in so far as its resources permit, management is duty bound to stabilize employment conditions. The plan, if successful, may well be adopted by other large corporations. At the very least it offers the working man and woman relief from the fear of unemployment and should contribute to the reduction of labor turnover.

IMPORTS OF RECREATION.

American tourists' expenditures in foreign countries in 1929 have been officially estimated at $745,000,000, against $693,000,000 in 1928. Notwithstanding frequent assertion that Americans are in too much of a rush to learn how to play, official statistics prove that their vacation outings bulk heavy in our international exchange.

We are a nation of producers, agricultural and industrial, and after satisfying our own needs have a great surplus to export. Yet with one exception our taste for recreation has more to do with our foreign exchange than any single commodity we export, and more than any one we import. A comparison with a few leading exports would be surprising to any one who thinks otherwise.

Raw cotton is the premier export commodity. For years it has stood at the head of the list of peace time trade. In the last year the exports of cotton were valued at $770,830,000. It still retains its leading position, but recreation, an import item, is close upon its heels. The latter has stepped to second position, far outdistancing two other commodities that have been making gains on cotton.

Those two are automobiles and petroleum. Total exports of automobiles, including parts and accessories, in 1929 amounted to $539,290,000, while petroleum and its products amounted to $511,981,000. No other item on the commodity list comes near to recreation's total, and as for the list of "invisibles," it is even larger than the "exports of capital" evidenced by public offerings of loans in 1929, which had a net value of $671,000,000.

American tourists are buying rest, amusement and education from foreign countries just as surely as we buy coffee from Brazil. Therefore, the total cost becomes a cash claim against the United States in the balancing of international accounts. After deducting $180,000,000 of foreign tourist expenditures here there is still a balance of $565,000,000 due other countries, which is equal to the war debt payments for about two and a half years.

In the settlement of export and import accounts such items as these are offsetting matters against our huge exports of goods, and thus help to stabilize the exchanges.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

MAYBE OLD GEORGE IS LAUGHING RIGHT NOW.

Anyhow it might not be a bad idea for somebody to go snooping around Westminster abbey, over in London, or wherever the late lamented George III. of England is buried, and take a look at his tomb and see if he hasn't kicked the end board out laughing heartily on this Fourth day of July, the one hundred and fifty-fourth anniversary of the independence of these United States of America. George felt pretty bad about it before he passed out, but today, July 4th, 1930, he may be feeling quite jovial that he lost the war. You see, George knows that on this glorious anniversary of our country's birth we over here can't tell, when we hear a terrific explosion, whether it's a cannon giving voice to our nation's joy or a hijackers' battle. And when George thinks of the Revolutionary army running him ragged and giving Burgoyne and Cornwallis and his Hessians a kick in the pants ever so often he thinks happily of the fact that while he couldn't lick the Americans the gangsters, the racketeers, the rum runners, and the bootleggers reach up and pull a handful of tail feathers out of the American eagle every few minutes. Boom! As George hears that one he probably cracks to Bill Shakespeare, "You said a mouthful when you pulled that one about the whirligig of time bringing its revenge, what?"

STRANGERS.

You never really knew me,
I never talked to you,
I only said conventional things
The way that people do.

I played the part that you assigned,
You knew my color scheme,
And that I liked dark, windless nights,
And coffee thick with cream.

Now that our roads are growing far,
And you must go alone,
I cannot think that you shall miss
One whom you've never known.

HELEN WELSHEIMER.

OBSERVE OUR CANNONS with which we will celebrate the Fourth today. It is true our cannons do not make a great deal of noise, but their great beauty consists in this—you cannot look down 'em to see if they are loaded.

STALIN made a seven hour speech to the Soviet congress and every delegate had to stay in his seat and listen to every word or be branded as reactionary. Anyhow, over here in capitalistic America, when any one makes a long speech we can go outside when we feel like it, light a cigarette, and say—"banana oil!"

HERE, my child, is a lovely bunch of cannon firecrackers which I have bought you to make whoopee in honor of G. Washington and the independence of your glorious country. But first, dearie, go over to yon parcel room and get your fingers checked, and also it would be as well to stay away from the house when you celebrate, as you would not wish your nice, comfortable home to burn down. Hooray, hooray, hooroo!

THE GLORIOUS FOURTH— LONG, LONG AGO.

We think back to the days long, long ago when we used to fall in behind the G. A. R. and the Silver Cornet Band in its big red band wagon and march out to Dickinson's Grove, where our little town held its annual Fourth of July celebration. And amid the roar of anvils transformed into cannon, the snapping of firecrackers and the enthusiastic whoops of Tom Glodsell, the town drunkard, the perspiring orator of the day would shout: "But today, my friends and feller countrymen, this here nashun has become the greatest, the grandest, the most glorious, the most wonderful nashun on the face of the earth, and tomorrow if need be could march out a army that could trampul all the hutty countries of Yurrup into the dust from which they sprung!" At this point the speech was always interrupted by Tom Glodsell climbing on the platform, slapping the orator on the back and yelling: "Give 'em hell, boy; give 'em hell!" Ah, those were indeed the days!

FAILURE.

A thief, a harlot, a fool
Came to the end of life,
And each made his own excuse
And each turned a bitter knife.

For all clambered up those steps
Where their own bright stars were hung
And all had but found at last
The peace of the lowest rung.

And one was a hero born
And one was meant for a nun
And one missed the light of fame
By the breadth of a setting sun.

JUDY SHEA.

LAGNIAPPE.

OH, SAY, can you see—if the arnica bottle's there—and the bandages wrapped—and the doc's hanging 'round—la la la—la la la la—oh, la la la la.

"THE CROWN PRINCE of Jugo-Slavia," sayeth the Chi. Dolly Noose, "recently gave a dumbbell exhibition before an athletic association in Belgrade." King Carol of Roumania gives dumbbell exhibitions all the time that make Prince Peter look like a plugged dime.

WE REGRET that we have but one life to give to our country. And we'd rather not give that just yet. Will you one hundred per centers with the toy cannons, the cannon crackers, and the revolvers kindly keep them dam things away from us?

RISK IN CREAM PUFFS.

THE risk due to eating cream puffs and chocolate eclairs arises from the presence of the custard. This custard has about the same composition as other custards. Therefore, it is a very good culture medium. Germs capable of producing food poisoning of one kind or another grow very well in custards, whenever conditions are right. To overcome this risk it is necessary, in making a custard, to use good fresh materials, to mix in a cleanly fashion, and then to consume the product rather promptly. While awaiting consumption the custard should be kept in the refrigerator. That method of making and keeping custards is well understood and in general use.

Cream puffs and chocolate eclairs have the outward appearance of cakes and pastries. People think of them as belonging in that class, and they take only the precautions required for cakes. If there is a slip in the making of the cake dough it is not regarded as of moment because the cooking will make the product safe. The "goo" in eclairs and puffs does not get enough heat to kill all the germ life.

Instead of going into the icebox for keeping, as is done with other custards, eclairs and cream puffs are likely to be found in the showcase, or on the shelves among the cakes. The journey from the bakery to the home is liable to be made in a paper bag. In the household pantry they are generally found in the cake box. In other words, all down the line we think of eclairs and puffs as pastry rather than as custard.

This treatment of a custard is not safe, especially in hot weather. The result is rather frequent outbreaks of food poisoning, mostly mild, but some severe. The remedy is to use no eclairs or cream puffs during hot weather until such time as they can be put on a custard basis.

BABY AFRAID OF BATH.

A. L. W. writes: Mrs. C. S. wrote recently about her baby's fear of a bath. I wonder if my own experience may not be helpful to her. I brought my twin babies from the hospital and began to care for them myself at once. I didn't know anything about babies and I was terrorized at the awful responsibility. One of the twins acted as does this woman's baby.

As soon as I put her in the water she would shriek and she kept it up until she lost her breath and started to turn black. This continued day after day until she was 4 months old. I dreaded bathtime more than any other part of the day.

As their routine became more established and she grew to realize what it signified when I picked her up and began to remove her clothes, she commenced before she was put into the water. In desperation, one day I put her in the tub with her clothes on. While she was startled, she seemed interested, and she didn't cry much. I let it go at that, removing her from the tub and changing her clothes, patting her dry, and talking to her soothingly. I kept this up for a week, then gradually removed her clothing until finally all I kept on when I put her in the tub was her shirt. She lost her panic at last, but it took two months—she was 6 months old before she got her first real, jolly bath.

Whatever caused her fright I feel must have happened at the hospital. Her sister never exhibited the slightest sign of it.

HAVE IT CUT OFF.

DOG DISPOSED OF.

Chicago, June 30.—[Friend of the People.]—There is a dog which runs around our neighborhood without a license, muzzle or chain. The dog snarls and snaps at everybody who comes near its master's house. As vacation time is here and many children go to the playground nearby, I am afraid this dog is going to bite some child when the weather gets warmer. H. S.

Following is report submitted by commanding officer of the fifteenth district: "Owner of the dog in question was interviewed and informed of this complaint and she stated that she would dispose of the dog. The officer further reports that he again visited this place on June 25, 1930, and found the dog had been given away."

JOHN H. ALCOCK,

TRAFFIC LIGHTS NEEDED.

Chicago, June 23.—[Friend of the People.]—I live in the neighborhood of 22d street and Marshall boulevard and cross this street daily. Pedestrians walking north or south on Marshall boulevard crossing 22d street are forced to walk between machines, thereby endangering their lives due to the fact that the stop and go signals are situated about 100 feet, more or less, from said crossing. Machines move up to the signals. This condition should be remedied as soon as possible, as this street is used daily by blind people going to and from work. The home for the blind, with the broom factory in which they are employed, is located on Marshall boulevard and 19th street.

I do not see why this condition should exist, especially when the lives of children and blind people lie in the balance.

L. M. N.

There is really only one way to remedy this situation and that is to put up two additional traffic regulators at the walks and I shall take this matter up with the general superintendent and recommend that this be done as soon as possible.

WILLIAM SCHRAMM,
Captain of Police, West Chicago Park Commissioners.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

65 YEARS AGO TODAY

JULY 4, 1865.

EDITORIAL.—The municipal affairs of Chicago are all "at loose ends," and nobody knows what is the matter. But everybody understands that we have the foulest streets, the dirtiest river, the most inefficient police, the most nauseous water, the most fogyish board of public works and board of health in the world, unless we look for their equal in Turkey, China or Dahomey. The sights and smells that greet the nose wherever within the municipal limits the wayfarer goes would, but for the unrivaled advantages of Chicago, drive every man out of it; and would also, but for the influences of the lake and land breezes that do for us what the doctors cannot, kill half the people before they could get out.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

JULY 4, 1900.

CHEEFOO.—It is reported that all foreigners have been ordered out of Tientsin. The situation is considered desperate. The Chinese are pushing their entrenchments under the walls.

KANSAS CITY.—With everything in readiness for the meeting of the Democratic national convention at noon tomorrow (July 4), the forecast is for the nomination of William Jennings Bryan on a radical 16 to 1 platform, with the second place filled by either Charles A. Towne of Minnesota or Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois. The mention of 16 to 1 is about as certain as such things can well be, because Bryan insists upon it. It is said he will rush to Kansas City if need be to prevent the convention ignoring silver.

CHICAGO.—The maximum temperature yesterday on the Auditorium tower was 90 degrees and at the street level 91 degrees. One man died from the heat and twenty were prostrated.

OKLAHOMA CITY.—Gov. E. M. Barnes of the territory of Oklahoma threatened to arrest the entire body of Rough Riders, here for a reunion, including Gov. Roosevelt, with the territorial militia. The trouble arose over the insufficient number of horses furnished for the Rough Riders and the governor's staff in the parade, and the governor demanded those allotted to the Rough Riders. Roosevelt sent Barnes a message to take the horses and prevented further trouble.

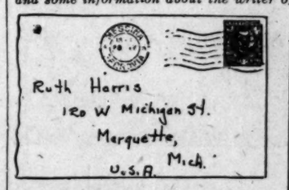
JULY 4, 1920.

SAN FRANCISCO.—After a day of futile balloting and fruitless effort to arrange a compromise the Democratic national convention is deadlocked tonight (Saturday) on the choice of a candidate for the presidency. When the clerk began calling the roll on the twentieth ballot at 10 o'clock (1 a. m., July 4, Chicago time) Gov. Cox had been far in the lead for eight ballots. The twentieth ballot resulted: Cox, 456½; McAdoo, 340½; Palmer, 178. The two-thirds majority required for a nomination is 728 votes.

INTERESTING LETTERS

If you have received a letter from an interesting or little known place send the envelope to The Tribune, stating name of place where it was mailed and some information about the writer of the letter.



Letter received by Ruth R. Harris, 120 West Michigan street, Marquette, Mich.

"The inclosed envelope was mailed from Messina, Sicily," Miss Harris writes. "The sender of the letter, Oliver B. Combs, with a classmate, Lowell K. Hanson, both graduates of the University of Ohio, self-styled 'around the world vagabonds,' were making a survey of business conditions preparatory to engaging in the foreign trade business.

"In the letter he tells about Russia as follows:

"'Russia was an intensely interesting place and I would have written you from there during our two weeks' stay, but all mail to and from Russia is censored and any letters containing information about the Russian government or conditions there, whether true or untrue, are destroyed if officials think that they will cast any reflections on Russia.

"Conditions there are terrible. Half of the people are hungry and there is practically no industry, very little domestic commerce, and no exporting at all. All wages, except a few, the amount of which it is impossible to ascertain, are limited. A bank president draws less salary than a good mechanic."

Messina, whence Mr. Combs' letter came, is a city and seaport of Sicily, the capital of the province bearing the same name. It is situated about 200 miles southeast by south of Naples, on the Strait of Messina.

A PARIS TRAGEDY.

Chicago, July 2.—The suicide of that young midshipman in Paris made sad reading this morning. It is certainly poor judgment on the part of the naval authorities to turn young middies loose in Paris or, for that matter, in any strange city. The rules at the academy are very stringent. Naturally, when the boys get away from there they are apt to run a bit wild.

Women are not very welcome in naval conferences. The board of visitors which inspects the Naval academy every year and makes suggestions for its conduct is composed exclusively of men, although mothers of the midshipmen might be supposed to be as much interested in the welfare of their sons as the fathers. If a few women were put on that board there would be considerably more supervision of the midshipmen cruises and lads of nineteen would not be left to the mercies of the so-called "guides" of Paris. MARY ONAHAN GALLERY.

THE OLD-FASHIONED SALOON.

Chicago, June 30.—Early last Christmas morning as I was riding in a southbound Clark street car a fine looking young man entered and was going to take a seat when a foul odor from three half drunken men drove him to the very front part of the car. The expression on the face of that young man as he smelled the foul odor made me think that he must have felt as I did when at the age of seventeen I was invited to take a drink of sweet wine in one of those "swell saloons" decorated with large mirrors and mahogany furniture. The odor of liquor and the air full of tobacco smoke and the language of the men, sitting around the many tables, struck me with such a horrible sensation that I got out of that "swell place" quicker than I came in, never to enter a place of that kind any more and I am now seventy-one. It was a taste of hell to me.

It never entered my mind to go into the common, stinking saloons, and it seems to me ridiculous that any decent citizen of our country should want to see the dirty traffic of liquor flourish again. No lady, and I think no gentleman, either, would enter such places.

But what about the women in the "back parlor" of the saloons? Intoxication and unchastity go together, as inspection committees and police officers can amply testify. A. J. B.

GOLFING IN THE PARK.

Chicago, July 1.—Now that schools are closed the youngsters seem to have made one grand rush for the public golf courses. As a general rule they have no idea of the proper way [or ways] to hit a golf ball and, of course, they do not know there are such things to be observed as rules. Printed signs are ignored by them; they wander all over the course, picking up any balls that attract their fancy, and ruining the game of those who are unlucky enough to be near them. But they are permitted to buy tickets and turned loose to do their darnedest!

Lincoln park has spent a lot of money in improving its course. It is now a pleasure to play over it. The wonder is that the board has not gone a step farther—employing a professional teacher of the game, who would give instructions to those needing it, and forbidding those who do not know to spoil the pleasure of others. It may be that this "is not done." But somebody has to make a beginning. Why not let Lincoln park show a good example?

LINCOLN PARK PLAYER.

53 DOWN, 51 UP.

Chicago, June 29.—Why is it the management of the motor bus lines changes the route while in the loop without notifying the passengers? I took bus 53 at its starting point, Ravenswood and Wilson avenues, for a ride downtown and back. On the way home I found the route had been changed and I was out on Sheridan road. I am lame from an accident and was compelled to walk to a corner where I could get a 53 bus. Never again for me. R. E. M.

SUMMER SCHOOL TEACHERS.

Chicago, June 30.—Why isn't some ruling made and enforced to correct an evil which exists in the high schools of this city? I refer to the fact that some older teachers are now employed in day school, night school, and, in addition, are holding down practically all of the positions in the summer schools, year in and year out. In fact, they seem to have life leases on the work and no younger teacher can hope to work as occasional summer, when he chooses, until some old fossils give up owing to physical breakdown or until a ruling is enforced making it impossible for any teacher to hold a summer job for more than two years in succession.

Seniority seems to be like the divine right of kings. Teachers who are on the maximum salaries, while they are not necessarily the best teachers, are, to be sure, the most expensive ones. Those who have worked summers year after year without a vacation can have no fresh outlook or background for the pupils they meet again in September. Imagine a history teacher who does not stop and take an occasional trip to Europe!

There are younger teachers coming into the system who have new ideas and fresh enthusiasm. It is possible that they need once in a while to supplement their incomes by summer work, for they can ill afford to take all of the vacations and the trips abroad. In fact, I believe these teachers do not want steady summer positions, for they still have the spirit of youth and some love of variety. A TEACHER.

THE BLACK HORSE TROOP.

Chicago, June 30.—Ex-Artilleryman was correct in the comparison he made between the riding of the regular cavalry that came to the military exhibition and of the Black Horse amateurs. I, too, saw both on that Thursday and the Black Horse boys gave me a good laugh, which is something to be thankful for in these Hooverized times of expert farm relief and everything.

But it is difficult to understand the mentality of grown up children who put themselves up in such a rig for public exhibition except in amateur theatricals. Perhaps they were sons of those mothers who during the wartime so loudly told the world, "I did not raise my boy to be a soldier." If so, I quite agree with the mothers.

In Japan or Europe such an outfit would be laughed off the public streets as a military troop.

EX-SERGEANT OF U. S. CAVALRY.

MURDEROUS BLACKBIRDS.

Chicago, June 28.—Speaking of the scarcity of robins, is it possible their young are being killed and eaten by blackbirds, as my wife and I witnessed the killing of two young sparrows on two different occasions while seated in Hamilton park? I was born and raised in a country town in northwestern Pennsylvania where there are birds of nearly every kind, but I never before saw nor have I ever heard of blackbirds killing and eating sparrows.

FREDERIC C. JACOBS.

WHAT PRICE COLLEGE!

Chicago, July 1.—Whoever it was that first said that the modern man had no chance in business unless he was college trained very evidently had a father who owned his own firm and was willing to take in Junior. What about those who believed it was true but who had no pull? They are walking the streets—and will keep on.

I know. I'm one. I worked my way through school. It took me till I was 26 years old, but I got my degree. And with it away went my last chance for work. The business men hire only boys of seventeen or under and promote them. There is no vacancy for a young man who would be willing to do office boy work at $15.00 a week. He has an A. B. and knows nothing. He has no pull. He has nothing.

It's odd, isn't it? Sixteen years of preparation—to starve on the streets. If this is printed, I hope it will keep some lad out of college. DISILLUSIONED.

"RING! RING!!"

For this illustration the celebrated artist, M. Leone Bracker, has chosen a tradition of the "high dramatic moments" of American history. According to this story the patriotic revolutionary assembly has been debating the provisions and phraseology of the proposed Declaration of Independence—the final draft of which Jefferson has just brought. Will they sign? If they do they well know—these men of position, wealth, family and honor—they will be in rebellion against the King, with a price upon their heads. The hour is tense beyond words; throngs are waiting in the square. As soon as the vote is cast a boy climbs the ladder to the belfry to give the signal to the bell-man. Here he comes! What a moment! "Ring! Ring!!"

July Fourth is the date officially set for celebrating the event. The date marks one of the great epochs in the history of mankind.

Historians have never ceased to marvel that on the now forever famous Liberty Bell, cast twenty-three years before 1776, there was this inscription:

"PROCLAIM LIBERTY THROUGHOUT ALL THE LAND UNTO ALL THE INHABITANTS THEREOF."

INDEPENDENCE DAY, forever sacred to the ideals, principles and traditions of the American people, finds its supreme emblem in the Liberty Bell. The Constitution and the Flag were yet to come. The Declaration of Independence had been signed, and the people had been committed to the program of the Revolution. It was the function of the Liberty Bell to "proclaim Liberty throughout all the land unto all the inhabitants thereof."

Today, as we celebrate Independence Day, vibrant with the patriotic sentiments of one hundred and fifty-four years, it may be a service to recall the spirit of that first Independence Day in 1776.

It may serve to suggest our appreciation of the rights and privileges of American citizenship, and our responsibility to preserve them for those who shall follow us—in the spirit of that hour which the Liberty Bell served to fix forever in the mind and heart of the American people.

W. B. THOMPSON ESTATE VALUED AT $85,000,000

Copper King Leaves Bulk to Relatives, Employes.

New York, July 3.—[Special.]—An estate valued at $85,000,000 was left principally to relatives and employés in the will of Col. William Boyce Thompson, Yonkers copper king and philanthropist, who died on June 28 in Yonkers.

The principal legatees are the widow, Mrs. Gertrude H. Thompson, and her daughter, Mrs. Margaret Schultze. Only two institutions were named in the will—the American Museum of Natural History and Phillips Exeter academy of Exeter, N. H.

The museum was given $20,000 for a suitable room in which to exhibit the collection, to be known as the "Boyce Thompson Mineral Collection." The will also gave the museum $50,000 to obtain additions to the collection.

The will did not mention the plant institute in Yonkers which Col. Thompson founded and supported. It was learned, however, that before his death he provided a $10,000,000 fund to support the institution.

Several bequests were given to employés or former employés.

NEARING END OF CASE AGAINST 2 GARY POLITICIANS

With a new defendant under arrest, the state yesterday neared completion of its election conspiracy case against Joseph Carlson and Owen Omulia, Gary politicians, on trial in the Lake county Criminal court at Crown Point.

John Mullen, hotel proprietor and politician, was released on $5,000 bond. He probably will be tried on the conspiracy charge in the fall term of court.

Yesterday's witnesses included Charles Parker, who had pleaded guilty to the conspiracy charge; Joseph O'Bara, and Andrew Choka. All three drove cars to bring in floaters, they testified. O'Bara and Choka, arrested early this morning as material witnesses, were surprise aids of the state's case. Their repeaters were afraid to vote when they got here, they testified, but they collected their pay anyway after returning them to South Chicago later in the day.

Food Talk.

Have you reached that stage where fried chicken no longer means anything to you? If so, you have been dining where cooks are destructive and reckless. Fried chicken that fails to delight the palate either has been robbed of its own delicate and distinctive flavor or has been blended with some alien flavor that has taken away its characteristic deliciousness.

It is a simple thing to prepare delicious fried chicken. In the first place we must select the chicken with care. [Unless it is young and tender to begin with we cannot expect excellency in the finished product.] If we want the best flavor and the highest quality we must choose a live chicken and one that weighs not less than 1½ nor more than 2½ pounds. A young chicken is never fat, but it shouldn't be so thin as to appear to be all bones.

Have the butcher kill, dress, and draw it, but wash, singe and cut it up yourself. [Strawberry hullers are excellent to remove pin feathers]. If you do not know how to dismember a chicken, learn how. Drum sticks should be separate from thighs and the thigh from the breast. The wings should be separate and the neck as well. Above all, do not tear away the skin. It is a crime the way some cooks can tear off the skin of the thighs and drum sticks especially, removing appetizing fat and flavor. This allows the escape of juices. Do all the washing of the chicken before you start cutting it up. And you can't do this too quickly.

Let Cool at Least an Hour.

Put the cut up chicken in the refrigerator or some cool place to cool out—an hour or so at least should be allowed for cooling. If the chicken is tender you will need to begin the frying about 30 or 40 minutes before you are ready to serve. The time for frying depends upon the size and thickness of the pieces.

For frying there is nothing better than a heavy iron skillet. Any good fat will produce satisfactory results. I prefer lard, however, and when I feel that I can spare the butter I use a mixture of 2-3 lard and 1-3 butter. The good, old time cook rolled her chicken in flour—just plain flour with a little pepper added but not salt—and to my mind she knew how to fry chicken. Many modern cooks use cracker and bread crumbs and some kind of batter. I prefer to use the crackers, bread crumbs and batter elsewhere in my cooking.

The fat should be sizzling hot when the chicken is put in. This sears the surface, making it deliciously crisp and keeping in the juices. As soon as each piece is well browned on both sides, the flame should be lowered. After cooking for about 15 minutes, add salt. It is important to add the salt at this time, as salt added at the beginning would draw out the juices, leaving the meat dry.

When the chicken is done, remove it to a hot platter or pan and make gravy. Good fried chicken calls for gravy, and milk gravy at that.

SPAGHETTI RECIPE

SPAGHETTI WITH TOMATO SAUCE.

1½ tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 cups strained tomatoes
¼ teaspoon chopped onion
2 cups cooked spaghetti

Melt butter. Add flour and seasoning. Gradually add tomatoes and onion stirring all the time to prevent lumping. Cook until smooth. Pour over spaghetti. Place in a buttered baking dish and bake 15 to 20 minutes.

Yield: Four servings. One serving: Total, 141 calories; protein, 15 calories; fat, 54 calories; carbohydrates, 72 calories.

Precautions: For success in making appetizing spaghetti dishes, it is most essential that the spaghetti be well cooked. The most savory sauce will not redeem undercooked spaghetti. Drop the spaghetti into boiling salted water and boil hard at least 20 minutes. Another desired quality is that the spaghetti be firm and the pieces separate. This is best attained in this way: Drain the boiled spaghetti thoroughly. Then add very cold water and drain again. The addition of still more cold water and a second draining is even better. The spaghetti is then ready to be combined with the other ingredients.

SALLY'S CROWD TESTS DELIGHTS OF WHITE CITY

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Well, boys and girls, wasn't that a day to remember for some time to come! Yes, sir, Mr. Herbert A. Byfield, president of the White City amusement company, gave a card party for one hundred boys and girls yesterday. From the moment we arrived at the gates of the park until we wearily, though reluctantly, closed them behind us at the end of the afternoon there wasn't a second that didn't fairly whiz by with excitement.

We began the party with that lovely and interesting ride through the canals of Venice which put us in good shape for the rocking Lindy Loop that followed. From then on the rides came so fast we were dizzy. There was the Hey Dey where we sat in cars, two by two, and tried to steer ourselves from colliding with each other as we bounded over the surface and whirled about at a rapid pace. In the Mysterious Sensation, shrieking with laughter, we felt our way through the long, dark corridors over floors that slanted and dipped. Then after a thrilling ride on the Pep we proceeded to the cool and shade of the Picnic Grove, where we rested for the excitement and thrills to follow and feasted on the cooling drinks and delicious refreshments that the management of White City had provided for us.

There were the Chutes and The Giant Racing Coaster and the Flash—rides that take your breath and provide thrills such as you've never before experienced. At the Magic Crystal Maze where we became hysterical at the funny things we saw and did, there were souvenirs and gifts for each of us presented by Mr. Murphy, the genial proprietor. We had our pictures taken—you'll find them in another part of the paper—and we had more refreshments. But, such days must come to an end, so we packed in a last hour of good time in the Fun House before we made our farewells.

If you could have seen and heard us! We were weary from our strenuous and exciting afternoon, but we had had a grand time and we wanted the world to know about it. We cheered for Mr. Byfield and we cheered for Mr. Weber and we cheered for all the other men at White City who'd been so helpful in making this first party of ours a glorious one.

PARIS, July 3.—Cheever Dunning, a Detroit boy, who started as an engineer and became one of the best known poet expatriates in Paris, died here today from lung trouble. He was 54. U. S. MIDDIE WHO DIED IN PARIS TO GET OCEAN GRAVE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, July 3.—In accordance with his dying request, Francis H. Worthington, 19 year old midshipman who committed suicide after having seen too much of Paris night life, will have a sailor's burial at sea.

Arrangements have been made for the naval training squadron to put in at Cherbourg once more on July 30. Worthington's body will be put aboard his ship, the Utah, and he will put out to sea for the last time with his classmates. When well out services will be held and the body will be lowered overboard.

Worthington particularly requested a sea burial in the letter he left for Admiral W. T. Cluverius, commander of the squadron. Until the latter part of July the midshipman's body will lie in the mortuary chapel of the American cathedral here.

SYNOPSIS.

Catherine West of Boston, on her way to Paris, meets Geoffrey Macadam. Catherine tells him that she is going to visit her cousin's widow, Mme. Belmont Bender. She is apprehensive about the coming visit, because she had received, just before sailing, a letter from Hermione Cushing, who tells her that Mme. Bender is far from well. Macadam is a lawyer and he tells Catherine that his firm handles Mme. Bender's affairs. He had heard that she was ill.

Arrived at Mme. Bender's apartment, Catherine is treated coldly by the servants. Jeanne, Mme. Bender's maid, tells her that Mme. Bender attempted to commit suicide the night before. The next morning Catherine goes in to see Germaine, who is pathetically glad to see her. She tells Catherine how she had taken poison by mistake.

Geoffrey invites Catherine to dine with him and she tells him of her vague fears.

The next morning Catherine calls on Miss Cushing, who takes her to her milliner, where she sees a man she has noticed hanging around the Bender apartment. Back in the apartment she finds the gallery open for the first time and discovers a number of pictures and tapestries missing. Jeanne says they were sold shortly before Mr. Bender's death. Catherine feels she is lying. She finds Jeanne is exerting a baneful influence on Mme. Bender.

Geoffrey again takes Catherine out to dinner and she unburdens herself to him. He has already put an investigator on the case. He asks her to marry him, but she wants time to be certain of her feelings. Catherine goes to visit Geoffrey's sister.

Geoffrey discovers Blom, the mysterious person seen around the Bender apartment, is seeking a possible heir to the Bender fortune. Shortly after this discovery, Blom's engagement to Mme. Baron, Miss Cushing's milliner, a widow whose maiden name is the family name of Mme. Bender, is announced.

A fire breaks out in Mme. Bender's apartment early in the morning and she is burned to death. Most of the building is saved. Catherine had returned suddenly to Paris the night before. The servants deny to Geoffrey that she came to the apartment. Geoffrey follows Eduardo, the butler, to Blom's office. He sends for his investigator to watch the pair, then calls on the commissariat de police, who assigns Inspector Barin.

Catherine did return to Mme. Bender's apartment. Before retiring she smells smoke and finds it is coming from her cousin's room. The door is locked. She dashes to get the keys and arouses Jeanne, who fights with her to prevent her from opening madam's door. She sees the butler, carrying a heavy candlestick—and then a crashing blow on her skull robs her of consciousness.

Geoffrey receives a telegram signed by Catherine, stating she was well and would telephone him on the morrow. After the first shock of joy he becomes doubtful about the message. He meets the inspector to watch, from a room across the street, the Bender apartment building.

On regaining consciousness Catherine finds herself in a strange bedroom, securely bound. After darkness Jeanne and Eduardo enter, release her and take her out to a waiting car where Blom joins them.

Becoming restless, Geoffrey goes out and meets Bernard, his investigator, who has seen Eduardo with two women entering the car. They set out in pursuit with the inspector in his car. After an exciting chase they overtake and collide with the fleeing car on the banks of the Seine, where Catherine's abductors planned to drop her in the river. In the ensuing battle Eduardo is killed and Jeanne and Blom are taken prisoner. Catherine's inert body is extricated from the overturned car. She is taken to the American hospital at Neuilly.

INSTALLMENT LXXXIII.

CONVALESCENCE.

Ten days passed before Catherine was considered well enough to discuss recent events without undue agitation, and while Geoffrey saw her each afternoon for a short time, their conversation was limited to commonplaces. At the end of that period, however, she showed a definite improvement. Her nerves calmed down, she was able to sleep the night through without a sedative, and exactly a fortnight from the memorable Saturday night she described to Geoffrey all that had happened, from her arrival at the flat till the shock of the collision, when she lost consciousness for the final time.

Geoffrey in turn related all his experiences during the corresponding interval—the sudden knowledge of Blom's motive, his discovery that she was missing, his suspicion of the servants, the false telegram which had thrown him off the scent, his vigil in the room across the street, and, last of all, the wild race with death, when every moment had been torture lest she should be consigned to the river before the pursuers could overtake her.

She listened absorbedly. All this time she had been completely in the dark as to the reason back of the plot, and she could scarcely contain her astonishment when she heard of Blom's intended marriage to the woman he planned by his villainy to turn into an heiress.

"Honorine!" she gasped. "That poor, middle aged, down-trodden woman? I feel quite sure she never dreamed of the relationship any more than Mme. Bender did. I don't suppose they ever heard of one another. I can't believe she was a party to any wrongdoing."

"I am sure she was not. Well, in all probability she will inherit your cousin's money, though she still is ignorant of the fact; and the outcome of this has spared her tying herself up with a scoundrel who would have used her fortune and neglected her for the first pretty face that came his way."

She mused a little over this, then turned back to the night which had so nearly ended everything for her. It seemed that the drive had taken place in almost total silence, Blom, who had evidently studied a road map, only speaking to issue commands, and every few minutes pushing her aside to peer through the window at the back to see if they were being followed.

"It was only a precaution, though, for they all believed they had come away unobserved. However, on the bit of road before we came to that last town."

"He remained looking out for some time, then swore horribly in German and called through the tube to Eduardo, telling him to drive like hell."

"That was when he saw us."

"Of course. You may imagine how I felt when I knew rescue was probably close at hand and heard the loathsome little creature scheming to outwit whoever was on our track. We pulled up for an instant to ask a direction; I couldn't catch what was said because my ears were so muffled up, but a second afterward we tore out of the town, went a little way, then doubled back and got into a narrow sort of lane, very rough."

He explained what had undoubtedly happened, how her captors had made the detour in order to avoid returning to Aubergenville, and how they were in the act of entering the lonely road leading to the Seine when they ran headlong into the very car they were endeavoring to escape.

"I never knew what hit us," she said. "I felt a terrific jolt which made me see stars, but if there was any thought in my brain it was that it was better to die that way than by drowning."

"I forgot to tell you," she remarked presently, when the nurse had brought tea and retired again tactfully, "that I had a visit from Hermione this morning. Poor thing, she is quite broken up, and has positively lost weight. Her clothes hung on her. Do you know, she never mentioned Germaine's money, nor the pearls, though surely she knows they are gone? The wretched part about it is that I am positive Germaine would have left her something if she had not been interfered with by Jeanne. Isn't it damnable? I am sure the poor creature has almost no money."

"As a matter of fact," Geoffrey replied, "things are not going to be so bad for her as you may suppose. As it turns out, it is she who will have to provide us with the particulars regarding Mme. Bender's family; in consequence of this, if this milliner does happen to be a fifteenth cousin or something of the sort, there will be a decent commission coming to our friend—probably enough to provide for her old age."

"Is that true? How perfectly splendid!" she cried, her eyes brightening. "I'm glad you told me—I've been bothering about her. She is miserably unhappy, you know. She told me she has not slept since the night of the murder, thinking of Germaine and her awful end."

Her voice trembled as she whispered the last words. Geoffrey set down his cup and sat upon the bed beside her, raising her chin with his hand so that he could look into her troubled eyes.

"Catherine," he said, "I can see you are letting that dwell on your mind, too. Isn't that so?"

"It haunts me," she admitted. "Every time I close my eyes I can see that flaming room and poor Germaine lying in the midst of it. I wish I could forget it."

"Well, you may take it for granted that she not only did not suffer but that she was never even aware of the fire. She simply went to sleep as usual and died before anything happened."

She looked at him with painful eagerness.

"O!" If only I could believe that!" she cried, with intense longing. "Do you think it is possible?"

"More than that. In fact, since the postmortem we are quite sure of it. Her organs were found to contain sufficient veronal to have killed her quietly and without pain. The fire was merely to cover things up. If the doors were locked it was only because Jeanne, having failed in her previous attempts, was unwilling to take any chances."

A sigh of thankfulness escaped her.

"Then there will be no difficulty about proving the murder?"

"Not when they have heard your evidence," he answered. "But don't let's talk of that now."

Watching, he saw a stoical light come into her eyes.

"I shall be equal to it when the time comes," she said, intrepidly. "When I think of what those two have done I could go through fire myself to bring them to justice."

"One tremendous point in our favor is their attempt to do away with you," he reminded her. "They'll find it pretty hard to explain that away."

"That was Eduardo's stupidity," she replied. "When he came in and saw me struggling with Jeanne he lost his head and let go at me. But for that they might have pretended they were merely anxious to prevent my harming myself by going into the burning room. I shouldn't wonder if they could have got away with it, too—Jeanne is so abominably clever! By the way," as a sudden thought struck her, "what was the hammering on the front door which I heard just before I lost consciousness?"

Good morning and the broth of a Fourth of July to ye!

[As any good Irishman would probably NOT remark.] But every good Irishman and plenty of us who are not Irish will admit that "Song o' My Heart" is a broth of a picture. We will see it ourselves and then, if we haven't taken the children with us, we'll go again, not alone that they may have fun, but that we may once more fall under the thrall of a golden voice that greets us from an Irish hearthside, and keeps its spell upon us from that moment till the very end of one of the most charming pictures that has ever been screened. Mr. McCormack is just himself. He doesn't try to act.

Charming, I said. The story is not remarkable for brilliance. There are no strikingly original situations. The action moves slowly. But the piece is lush with the glorious tenor voice of John McCormack and full of the warm and kindly presence of the man—he's like a hearth-fire! Its folks seem real and so are sets and scenery, for much of the picture was filmed at Moore Abbey, the Irish home of Mr. McCormack in Monasterevan, County Kildare, in the villages of Lusk and Rush, near Dublin. The dialogue is quaint and beguiling, funny and touching, and as delivered by one small boy known in the film as Tad, and by Maureen O'Sullivan, who as Eileen makes her bow in the movies, it's like a breath of ould Ireland.

Tad is rich and rare. He has a boy friend, Aloysius, whom he is always teaching games—that—[I can't spell that name again]—always wins. Games such as seeing which one can lean out of the window the farthest. The children will love Tad and they will adore Mr. McCormack, who, in the picture, sings songs to the youngsters in the neighborhood, which he lets them choose. Then, from the Philharmonic auditorium in Los Angeles he gives "Little Boy Blue"—and, as he sings, the tale of the little toy dog and the little tin soldiers who were so loyal, and of Little Boy Blue, for whom they waited those long years through, comes to life on the screen. It's perfectly lovely!

The story of "Song o' My Heart" is about a great singer who gently guides the romance of a pair of sweethearts, that it may not turn into the sort of tragedy love had spelled for himself and the frail woman wistfully portrayed by Alice Joyce.

The action carries you from Ireland to America and back again.

The picture has been beautifully photographed, directed and recorded and is most excellently cast throughout. It's a godsend to music lovers, and should be regarded as manna from heaven by parents who have been wailing that Nowhere, Nowhere can they find a movie fit for children.

Four hundred boys left for Winona Lake, Ind., yesterday afternoon over the Pennsylvania railroad as the first contingent for the Chicago Boys' club camp for the underprivileged. The group, representing twenty-five nationalities, saluted the United States flag at the Union station.

During the summer months two thousand boys, who otherwise would be denied a country vacation, are sent to the Winona Lake camp by the club.

Teachers War Upon Liquor and Tobacco; Favor Radio Control

Columbus, O., July 3.—(AP)—The National Education association today voiced its disapproval of tobacco advertising and any arrangement of radio broadcasting channels that does not provide education and government with a reasonable share of time on the air.

Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of schools at Atlanta, Ga., was elected president of the association here tonight. With 604 votes he defeated Joseph Rosier, president of the state normal school at Fairmont, W. Va., who got 448.

The resolution on tobacco advertising was approved in the face of strong opposition and by a vote so close that a count of the delegates had to be taken. It read:

"The National Education association urges all teachers to emphasize the evil effects of alcoholic drinks, tobacco and other narcotics. The association condemns the fraudulent advertising of certain manufacturers in their efforts to foster cigaret smoking. It commends for use in the schools selected periodicals which do not carry tobacco advertising."

The radio resolution placed the association on record as favoring the enactment of legislation which will "safeguard for the uses of education and government a reasonable share of the radio broadcasting channels of the United States."

While the representative assembly was approving this report, Ira E. Robinson, member of the federal radio commission, appeared before a general session and called on educators to "strike down an impending monopoly of the air by commercial interests."

Mr. Robinson did not name the group he claimed is forming a monopoly, but declared its "power and influence is so subtle and effective as to portend the greatest danger to the fundamentals of American republican government."

"The doctrine of free speech must be preserved," he said. "The use of the air for all and not merely for a few must be protected. The average man has the natural right to speak over the air as well as listen to others."

The Inquiring Reporter

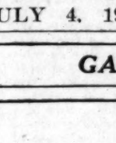
The Question.

Would you rather be the son of King Carol of Rumania, the Lindberghs, or Bobby Jones?

The Answers.

Simon Lewis, 932 Margate terrace, bailiff—I would pick Bobby Jones if I had to have one of the three; he has earned his name through clean sport, making hosts of friends through his pleasing personality. His son should follow in his footsteps, not necessarily as a golf champion, but as a good athlete and sportsman, a wonderful husband and father.

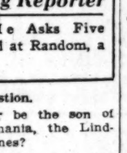
William H. Pickens, Los Angeles, sports promoter—Bobby Jones has achieved great fame through many years of real effort. He has made a multitude of friends. Above all, he is a regular fellow, recognizing that a popular hero owes much to the public which set him up as an idol. Who wouldn't want a father like that?



Sal Romano, 929 County building, clerk—Personally I'm satisfied to be the son of my own father, but otherwise Lindbergh would be my choice. He's a modest fellow who doesn't say much. He has done more for the promotion of aviation than any other man of the present day.

Charles Devine, Atlantic hotel, manager—Lindbergh would be my choice, as aviation will develop as a greater industry and Lindbergh's son probably would get unlimited knowledge of the subject. Lindbergh would be able to teach his son all the better things about aviation. His son should be a world famous aviator.

A. J. Maxwell, 8824 Loomis street, aeronautical expert—I would take Bobby Jones, because I'd be in contact with a great sportsman who is a real champion, idol of the public. By his own skill and energy he has won success. He has proved that American sportsmen are more skilled than others.



5 New Cardinals Take Seats in Sacred College

Italians Number 31 and Others Total 32.

VATICAN CITY, July 3.—(AP)—The sacred college, whose supreme function is the election of a pope, today numbered 63 members, seven less than its possible total, with the installation of five new wearers of the purple at a public consistory held today.

Three Italians and two from other lands were raised to the cardinalate the other day, giving the Italians 31 seats and non-Italians 32, the closest those groups have been to each other in recent years.

The five who this forenoon prostrated themselves before the pontiff, received their red hats and cardinals' rings and took the oath of fidelity to the Roman See were Monsignori Sebastiano Leme da Silveira Cintra, archbishop of Rio de Janeiro, Brazil; Achille Lienart, bishop of Lille, France; Raffaello Carlo Rossi, assessor of the consistorial congregation; Giulio Serafini, secretary of the congregation of the council; Francesco Marchetti-Selvaggiani, secretary of the congregation for the propagation of the faith.

The last named three will be of the Curia, administrators of the church's affairs. They will remain in Rome. The others will return to their dioceses.

Monks of the mendicant orders led the papal procession, clad in black, brown, or white robes, many with coarse rope girdles and sandals. Archbishops, bishops, and patriarchs followed in rich raiment of various hues, wearing jeweled mitres and bearing glittering croziers.

The last phase of the elaborate ceremonial took place in the pope's private apartments. There the pontiff bestowed on each a titular church in Rome and put on each one's finger a cardinal's ring, a large sapphire engraved with the pope's coat of arms and mounted in gold.

The Maryknoll college here is the first and only American institution in Rome to house a residential cardinal. Cardinal Francesco Marchetti-Selvaggiani will take up his residence in that building.

THE STAGE

EUGENIE LEONTOVICH left the cast of "Candle Light," at the Princess, last Monday night, and her rôle is now being acted by Lorayne Carpenter, who is said to be pleasing the patrons. This does not bereave "Candle Light" of a star, however, for Donald Brian is still playing the prince.

Miss Leontovich's departure was caused by a contract made some time ago for appearances at Newport, R. I., in a summer production of "And So to Bed." She will appear there as the star of this comedy about Mr. Pepys and his wife next Monday. The run of "Candle Light" at the Princess will continue until July 26. The play will then go to San Francisco, where Miss Leontovich will rejoin the company.

Whitford Kane, who seceded from the Goodman theater when Thomas Wood Stevens resigned as director, is at the University of Iowa, staging "Juno and the Paycock" and other Irish plays in connection with summer school activities. He writes from there:

"When I come back to Chicago I am going to get myself an alley theater and make it a second Abbey of Dublin."

Apropos of the Abbey, famous as the fountain source of the Irish dramatic renaissance, Dr. Walter Starkie, of its board of directors, is a member of the faculty of the University of Chicago this summer. His visiting professorship is the result of the generosity of a group of Chicago citizens of Irish descent. He will give a free lecture at the Art institute July 15 on "The Irish National Theater."

Marie O'Neill, the Irish actress, has been engaged by Jed Harris to appear in "Mr. Gilhooley," Frank Elser's adaptation of the Liam O'Flaherty novel, in which her husband, Arthur Sinclair, will also be seen. Both Miss O'Neill and Mr. Sinclair last acted here in 1927 with the Irish players in productions of Juno and the Paycock" and "The Plough and the Stars," under the management of George C. Tyler. The cast of "Mr. Gilhooley," which will be staged Sept. 15, will also include Helen Hayes, Dorothy Walters, Barry McCollum, John Butler, P. J. Kelly, and Ralph Cullinan. The play is scheduled to open Sept. 30 on Broadway.

A melodramatic comedy called "Friday the Thirteenth" will be A. H. Woods' first production of the fall season. It was written by Owen Davis, author of more than a hundred plays, including one Pulitzer prize winner, and father of the Owen Davis Jr. who acts with Richard Bennett in "Solid South."

Fritz Blocki, a Chicago theatrical reviewer, is the author of a play called "The World Between" which has been accepted for production next season by Chester Erskin, director of the firm of Charles Frohman, Inc., according to word from New York. The piece is described as a fantastic romance of modern theme and structure. George C. Tyler made a bid for it twenty-four hours after Mr. Erskin had signed the contract. C. C.

Defrere Denies Reports He and Hilda Burke Are to Be Married

Rumors from Baltimore that Desire Defrere, a tenor of the Chicago Civic Opera company, was about to marry Hilda Burke, a soprano of the same company, were denied yesterday by both.

"Married? Why I haven't been divorced yet," she said. She filed suit in Baltimore on April 19 for divorce from William S. Burke, employé of the circulation department of the Baltimore News. She charged desertion.

Nearly 2,000 women from all parts of the United States and Canada and a few from the Philippine islands were arriving here last night for the international conference of Catholic Women's sodalities, to be held today, tomorrow, and Sunday at the Stevens hotel. The conference, which is under direction of the Rev. Daniel A. Lord, S. J., will consider problems of education and social service work.

Ready to Turn Wilderness to National Park

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 3.—Preservation of the water levels, shore lines, timber and other natural features of the wilderness region in northern Minnesota became a virtual certainty today when the house unexpectedly passed the Shipstead-Nolan bill. The bill already had passed the senate.

Signing of the measure by President Hoover, which is anticipated, will set aside for the people of the north central states a vast recreation area of approximately 3,200,000 acres lying between Lake Superior and the Canadian border in northern Minnesota. Within the area is the Superior National forest and across the boundary lies the Quetico Provincial park, which it is planned eventually to merge with the American region into a great international park. It's within 24 hours of Chicago.

Passage of the Shipstead-Nolan bill by the house came as one of the surprises of the closing hours of the session. It was called up under a special rule, and after an hour's discussion, all favorable, was adopted by a unanimous voice vote.

Three weeks ago hope for house action on the bill had been practically abandoned after it had been twice stricken from the consent calendar by Representative W. A. Pittenger [Rep., Minn.] and the house leaders refused to grant a rule for its consideration. Its sponsors, however, refused to give up and finally proposed a compromise which Pittenger accepted.

As originally drawn, the bill would have affected an area of 4,000,000 acres, including certain farm and industrial lands in the southwest portion. Representative Pittenger objected to the inclusion of these lands, insisting that the area should be limited to 2,000,000 acres.

Under the compromise bill as passed, 796,000 acres in the southwest corner of the area were taken out, removing the towns of Tower and Ely, Minn., and 34 surrounding townships. Another compromise feature allows the secretary of agriculture to designate certain farm lands to be reserved for agricultural purposes. The bulk of the wilderness region along the border, however, remains within the scope of the bill.

"Fra Diavolo" Pilfers Secret of Youth as Best of the Bandits

BY EDWARD MOORE.

"Fra Diavolo" is a sure cure for the effects of a depressed stock market, congressional investigations and topping a golf ball. If the audience at Ravinia last night came several degrees short of what it should have been it must have been a sign that Ravinia patrons were in such spirits that they needed no cheering up.

At that they missed it by not coming, for it was a performance comic beyond all telling. Here was Mario Chamlee in the name rôle, a superb singer wise in the tricks and devices of the stage. Here was Florence Macbeth, a most charming singer and actress, in the part of Heerlina. Here was Virgilio Lazzari, suddenly transformed from the magnificent tragedy of "The Love of the Three Kings" to the most overwhelming of comic rôles, that of the bandit, Giacomo, and aided and abetted in all his gracelessness by Desiré Defrère.

Here were Vittorio Trevisan and Ina Bourskaya in a pair of wonderfully executed, if more than a little caricatured, character rôles. And down in the orchestra pit was Gennaro Papi conducting the rippling, pretty, humorous music as Toscanini might have done it.

It was an occasion for the laugh of the summer to see the three bandits combine song, dance, and the consumption of spaghetti in the first act; it was enough to start the house rocking; the same three scamps watching the innocent disrobing of Heerlina in the next act was more; to hear Mr. Trevisan explain how, as a result of the alarm, his wife had flung her arms around his neck for the first time was the equal of any comic situation invented this century.

"Fra Diavolo" in point of years ranks as an antiquity, but in high spirits, winsome music and unfailing laughter it is as young as the youngest.

Dry Skin Is Cause of Many Complaints Against Cosmetics

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Girls report frequently that such and such lotion is drying; such and such powder is too light to remain on; such and such soap is "killing" and so on.

You know there is always an extremely dry skin behind the complaint. Ordinarily one does not find lotion, powder or soap even mildly devastating. It is the lack of natural oil in the skin that is at fault. Where the symptoms of this and that disagreeing with the skin are expressed, it is well to be on the protective side so that the dryness will not lead to scaliness, harshness and early "crackling." When the oil glands act unnaturally and produce too little oil, that is exactly what happens.

A noted gland authority says that disturbances of the functions of the thyroid gland may cause the skin to look dry, lifeless, masklike and drawn. I note an inclination to charge the poor defenseless thyroid with any number of things lately. Because we lay persons can grasp so little of thyroid functioning, it puts us in quite a hole of puzzlement.

In which case, the logical thing is to seek out a good medic and offer up one's excessively sensitive skin to him for observation and suggestion. Perhaps he will offer just the right thyroid gland extract to ward off future wrinkling of the skin.

But special protection in the meantime should beallotted this type skin. And use water sparingly on the face. Olive or almond oil may be used, or a cleansing cream that you have found agreeable. Animal fats like lanolin are especially good, and lanolin is incorporated in cleansing creams or it may be used alone. A good procedure is to cleanse the face first with one of the bland oils and then a cream should be gently rubbed in.

To keep the skin glossy, soft and pliable, it may require several applications of cream a day. But keep it "greased" to prevent "cracks."

BEAUTY ANSWERS

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

J. R. E.: LEARN TO EAT SLOWly. Allow yourself so much time for your meals and chew your food well. Swallowing it in chunks causes disturbances of digestion and, in time your complexion will suffer. Also drink from six to eight glasses of water daily.

IDA H.: WARTS ON THE FACE can be removed without leaving a scar. The work must be done by a reputable physician.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Clothing for Widow.

"I am a young widow with two children to support. I have them in a day nursery and so far I have succeeded in clothing them. However, on account of sickness I haven't been able to get anything for myself, and as I work in a nice office my shabbiness is most apparent. I wonder if some one has a dress or two about to be discarded and a pair of shoes I could have. I wear size 18 dress and 6B shoes. N. J."

To have managed so well and without assistance as this young widow has done is quite an accomplishment.

Paris Prefers Flannel Ensemble for Country

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—The wide, open spaces where men are men and women are dowdy have ceased to exist so far as the ladies are concerned. Country clothes have a share in the chic of the season without letting go of practicality. No jumper and skirt for the up-to-the-minute country maiden. The one piece dress with its waistline at normal, just where the most gorgeous of evening gowns wear it, is the chic frock for those who frequent rural parts.

Country skirts avoid plaits, but go in for plenty of fullness around the hem, arrived at via gores, gathers, and godets, just like the well bred skirt for town. Country waists are trim and slim without being fitted, just as are the urban blouses of fashion. Country coats are free and easy, and usually are part of an ensemble.

The waist, sewed to the skirt at the normal waistline, is made of white cotton jersey. It is given an in-curving line at the sides, and appears to fit the column of the body because of the three green flannel belts that buckle in front with small green buckles. Similar bands are placed around the sleeves. The flat collar and carelessly twisted tie are extremely chic, and the brimmed panama hat that shows the forehead is the last word in country millinery.

Business Women Old at 29? Ye Gods, Says Doris, Mildly

BY DORIS BLAKE.

The men of our country must be getting a bit cracked on the subject of age in relation to woman's usefulness, if the report of Caroline Manning, expert of the United States Women's bureau, be true. And there is no reason to doubt her findings.

But to get back to the 29 year old in search of a job, and her discovery that she is an old woman. Isn't that a serious reflection on the intelligence of employers? Does it not, also, insinuate a pitiful form of male ego? Twenty-nine year old men are boys in an organization, to the executive of 40 and on. They're in the beginning of their prime, a prime due for a good twenty years' run, at least. And that's curtailing the life of thousands of useful male citizens and workers, to put it mildly.

By what course of argument with himself may a man arrive at the naive conclusion that a woman of 29 is due for the ash heap, if he himself is not tottering along beside her? By the same code of reasoning, at 42 the old boy ought to be conducting business from the inside of a quiet little mausoleum.

It's all so silly—this youth worship that is gnawing at the vittles of our male population, or at least at enough of them to produce an economic crisis in the lives of women. Argument about a 29 year old woman's business fitness and ability is too ridiculous to be entered into. But it is time some one took the pulpit to decry the abnormal taste for slim legs and fresh young cheeks that is coming to be not only an economic issue, but a matrimonial one with more men than would willingly admit it. It is time some one turned on the great, big, baby male egotists and half-witted flapper fanciers a Freudian searchlight so that they might see themselves as they are seen.

No one is maligning youth. It has its place in industry and in marriage alongside youth. But surely maturity has proven its worth in past and present day history of women accomplishment, as well as man.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

He Likes Her.

"Dear Miss Blake: I love a boy and I think he loves me. He acts as if he does, but doesn't ask me for my company. Is it that he doesn't care for me or is it bashfulness?

ANXIOUS LOVER."

He likes you and wants your friendship, Anxious, otherwise he would show you no attention. Asking for your company has no real significance.

His Last Date.

I called up my best girl and asked her to go to a show with me. We set a place to meet near the theater. It was before pay day, but I figured I had just enough money to ine to this show and see her home.

When the appointed time arrived A. showed up with another girl friend. I didn't know what to do, and before I knew it I was in front of the ticket window. I was looking around in my pockets, but knew I had only $1.40 to my name. Other people were waiting to get tickets also.

I turned around to the girls all "hot" and red and said, "Let's make this a "Dutch treat." E. B. D.

PATTERNS BY CLOTILDE

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

WOMAN'S OR MISS' DRESS.

Soft molded lines are featured in this lovely green printed chiffon. The normal waistline is emphasized through horizontal inverted pin tucks at either side of the bodice, and the bow of plain crêpe, placed at the left hip, is another evidence of the feminine mode. The low placed circular flounce of the skirt ends in a wrapped arrangement at the front. The capelets, falling softly over the arms give an impression of sleeves.

The pattern, 2546, comes in sizes 16 and 18 years, and 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 4¾ yards of 39 inch material with ¾ yard of 39 inch material for the bow.

Society Plans Gay Week-end of Golf, Dances

BY THALIA

The country clubs, where society is to spend most of its time during the week-end, are prepared to give their members, old and young, a good time befitting the patriotic holiday.

Whether the glorious Fourth is to be a sane one in the country is a matter being decided parentally rather than legally. For the ban against the sale of firecrackers is a city affair. There will be pyrotechnic displays at most of the country clubs.

Onwentsia's week-end festivities began last night with the regular mixed foursome golf, followed by a buffet supper and a fireworks display at 9:15 o'clock. There is to be a golf tournament today only for the men and there will be a dinner dance tomorrow night.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert McCormick Adams, who have taken a house in Lake Forest for the summer; the Charles Atkinsons, Mr. and Mrs. John Chapman, the Russell Kelleys, and the Thomas Welleses have made reservations at that club for groups of guests.

At Shoreacres, at Lake Bluff, the program is informal, with the members doing what they please. The men will play golf today for the Shoreacres goblet.

A picnic supper out of doors on the lawn, a band concert, and fireworks will make a sociable finish to the day at Exmoor, in Highland Park. There the men are to play golf, while the women will have their regular Friday "ladies' bridge."

Tomorrow also there is golf all day for the men, and in the evening there will be the usual Saturday night dinner dance. Members who are entertaining there include Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Canfield, who will have with them a party of 20 guests; W. H. Powell, whose party will include 30; Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Affleck, Arthur T. Leonard, Samuel Bingham, Mr. and Mrs. George Cooke, Mr. and Mrs. Xavier Vigeant, S. E. Baldwin, and C. A. Wright.

At Glenview Golf club there is to be a special luncheon for the youngsters, with a parade and games following. Both the men and the women will play golf, and there is to be a dinner dance tonight. Hosts at parties will include Mr. and Mrs. W. Tracy Alden, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Bosworth, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Yegge, Chester Cooke, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Burt, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Vilas, and Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Heath.

There are several prizes offered at the Chicago Golf club at Wheaton, including the Benjamin F. Taylor bronze trophy, the John D. Black trophy for an 18 hole net handicap, the J. B. McNulty cup for 18 hole match play against par, the George A. Carpenter trophy to be competed for by members over 50 years old, for low net score, 18 holes to be played this morning and 18 this afternoon, and the Walter Hellyer cup to be played for by sons of members under 25 years of age, a 36 hole handicap.

There also is the president's trophy to go to the winner of the best score in 36 holes handicap play, morning and afternoon. A fireworks display tonight, and a dinner dance tomorrow night, to be attended by about 150 are also on the Chicago Golf's program.

Knollwood's pretty little outdoor dancing pavilion has been covered with a gay marquee and will be lighted with illuminated balloons for the dinner-dance this evening. Col. and Mrs. Tracy Buckingham, Mr. and Mrs. William Bradford Freer, Miss Betty Poor, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Matthiessen, Mr. and Mrs. Edward R. Litsinger, Edward F. Wilson and Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Castle.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., July 3.—[Special.]—President Hoover has decided to motor to his fishing camp tomorrow morning, taking a party of friends with him for the holiday and the week-end. Among his guests will be W. D. Mitchell, attorney general, and Robert P. Lamont, secretary of commerce.

Secretary of State and Mrs. Henry L. Stimson left this afternoon for their summer home, High Hold, near Huntington, L. I., accompanied by the secretary's aid, Capt. Regnier. There they will spend the Fourth and the week-end.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, July 3.—[Special.]—Stuyvesant Barry, son of Col. and Mrs. Herbert Barry, will leave tomorrow for Dude ranch in the west, where he will spend the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Guenther have returned to their Fifth avenue apartment after a month's visit at Aix-les-Bains.

Here Are Two Books That Explain Life, Habits of Birds

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Information on sun bathing for babies will be sent by Mrs. Bevans on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

In describing and recommending books on the world of outdoors, my intention is, if possible, to mention first a short, easily read book which is in the nature of a guide or handbook—a book which can be put in a pocket or easily tucked into a picnic basket.

For bird knowledge, "What Bird Is That?" with its small color plates still holds its place in my esteem. As this was reviewed last year I will only mention today that it is by Frank M. Chapman, is published by D. Appleton & Co. of New York, and costs $1.50.

For a second choice I like to suggest a more advanced book, or one more fully written. Such a book would be "The Life Story of Birds," by Eric Fitch Daglish. An idea of the approach to the subjects is perhaps best given by its contents, which read:

"Birds in General.
"Birds in the Spring—Courtship.
"Nests and Nest Building.
"The Eggs of Birds.
"The Incubation of Eggs.
"Bird Babies.
"Birds and Their Food.
"Birds and Their Enemies.
"Migration."

This book is the finest one of its kind I have seen. It has some beautiful woodcuts, but, as its aim is not the identification of birds, it has no colored plates.

It is more advanced than any ordinary bird book and is not for field use. It is for home reading. As to the age it would appeal to—I should say boys and girls of 13 and up, and adults who are interested in birds and also want a richer background from which to interest their children.

Any book on birds, or on any other aspect of natural life which stirs us intellectually and emotionally—which makes us realize the wonders of this world—is a book worth having.

"WE'RE TOO OLD," SAYS PREACHER, "TO MAKE CHURCH INTERESTING"

BOURNEMOUTH, England, July 3.—(AP)—Dr. Jason N. Pierce of Washington, D. C., today told the delegates to the International Council of Congregational churches that they were "too old." He was speaking on "The Living Church and Youth." He said that among the 56 speakers listed on the program he believed there would not be found ten under fifty years.

"This is an amazingly old people's council," he said, adding that they had "an old man program."

STADIUM CLOSES ITS DOORS FOR NEXT 2 MONTHS

Stribling on Way

Chicago Stadium, the world's largest boxing arena, today will hang out a sign reading like this: "Closed for the summer."

Sidney Strotz, president of the corporation, announced yesterday after a meeting with the Stadium directors that the building would be idle for the next two months.

Lack of business was the reason advanced. The small attendance at the Griffith-Risko bout Wednesday night convinced Strotz that bi-weekly fight cards would not draw enough during the summer months to warrant operation. No other attractions were listed for July or August.

Unlike Madison Square Garden, which closes down every summer, the Stadium plans no outdoor fistic enterprises. The next card will be held early in September and Willie Stribling, the heavyweight title contender who knocked out Otto von Porat in the first round of their recent battle at the Stadium, will be the headliner. He probably will meet Tuffy Griffith.

Griffith, Risko Earn $6,514.

Stadium officials look forward to a busy fall and winter schedule. In addition to regular boxing shows the building will accommodate Chicago's two hockey teams, the Blackhawks of the National league and the Shamrocks of the American association. Several conventions have been billed.

The attendance at the Griffith-Risko bout was a disappointment. The Stadium's profit was said to have been less than $3,000. Each of the fighters drew more than twice that amount. They received checks yesterday for $6,514.24. The total receipts were $30,176.16.

In the last two months the Stadium's four heavyweight shows, in all of which Von Porat or Griffith has appeared, have drawn $219,619.93, with 61,000 paid admissions. On April 30 Griffith's comeback battle with Jack Gagnon drew 18,764, with receipts totaling $70,912.60. Nearly a month later, May 28, Otto von Porat knocked out Gagnon before a crowd of 11,319. The gross receipts were $38,274.20.

Then Young Stribling met Von Porat. The one round knockout of the Chicagoan was staged before the largest crowd ever to watch an indoor professional fight, 20,956. The receipts were $80,236.97.

ENGLISH DERIDE RULE

(Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.)

LONDON, July 3.—A chorus of derision has broken forth here as the result of the New York state boxing authorities' decision that boxers must wear protectors and foul blows will be considered fair. The outcry is not confined to boxing circles and it exceeds in violence British comments on the Scott-Sharkey fiasco in Miami last winter. The consensus is that British boxers will never conform to the new rule and that the New York decision will result simply in shutting off future Anglo-American ring encounters.

"The New York method of dealing with the situation is to make a bad joke worse than ever," says the Manchester Guardian.

The Morning Post says the new rule has been devised especially for Sharkey and recalls that a long line of American heavyweight champions from Peter Jackson to Tunney had been able to reach the top without smashing the boxing code.

Schmeling Arrives Home; Reports Recurring Pains

HAMBURG, Germany, July 3.—(AP)—Max Schmeling is still suffering recurring pains from the blow that ended his match with Jack Sharkey on a foul, the Teuton heavyweight told a representative of the Hamburger Fremdenblatt on his arrival from the United States at Cherbourg today. Schmeling said he would consult a physician as soon as he arrived in Berlin.

BY FRENCH LANE.

The first important duel of the year between eastern and western owned turf stars will come at Arlington Park this afternoon in the second running of the Stars and Stripes handicap, which carries an added money prize of $20,000. In the overnight entries, 25 of the best stake and handicap performers in America were named for the race.

Misstep, Blue Larkspur, Golden Prince, Lady Broadcast, Fair Ball, Paul Bunyan, Pigeon Hole, The Nut and Whiskery will carry the hopes of the westerners. The east will sweep into the race with such noted runners as W. S. Kilmer's Sun Beau, Edward B. McLean's Toro, Jock and Silverdale, the Audley Farm stable's Bobashella, Mrs. Payne Whitney's Stars and Bars, Mrs. K. E. Hitt's Hot Toddy and W. R. Coe's Cesare, Caruso, Maya and Cesarion. It is the largest and most representative field that has accepted the issue in a stake race this year.

In the overnight speculation the McLean entry and Blue Larkspur were held as equal first choices, each being quoted at 3 to 1. Misstep and his running companion, Canaan, were at 5 to 1, while Sun Beau was the third choice at 8 to 1. The Arlington Park Jockey club had made plans for a crowd of upwards of 35,000.

Conclave Wins Dash.

The easterners found occasion to celebrate yesterday when Conclave, a 3 year old daughter of Friar Rock-Pow Wow, galloped to victory in the Midlothian purse. She ran in the silks of William R. Coe, New York sportsman.

Conclave carried only a feather on her back, getting into the mile battle with 90 pounds. She was ridden by Jockey J. O'Hara, who is not much larger than Tom Thumb after Tom had been on a fruit juice diet for 60 days.

Conclave began running on the lower bend and continued to pull away from her field as she straightened out in the stretch for the run home. She went on to beat the heavily backed Gracious Gift by four lengths. Cog Air moved up in the final stages to be third.

At the rise of the barrier Conclave was first away, but in a dozen strides Gracious Gift was in the lead, and at times down the back stretch was leading by more than two lengths, with Conclave second and Cog Air third. The other six starters were closely grouped behind the leaders.

Nearing the last turn, Gracious Gift, ridden by Jockey J. Marcum, went slightly wide. Conclave, hugging the rail, drove on past her. She outfooted her rivals from there until the line of finish.

Silver Jay Wins Chase.

The Deep Run steeplechase at two miles, the second struggle the chasers have engaged in here, brought victory to the odds-on favorite Silver Jay, owned by the Rolling Plains stable of New York. There were two spills and some fine jumping.

The first horse to go down was Mythus, which was carrying the blue and yellow jacket of Laurence Armour. He fell at the first jump, but Jockey J. Wallace was not injured.

Bud Bud went to his knees while clearing the third jump, but Jockey George Bruening held his seat and Bud Bud was soon going along at a good clip and was challenging Silver Jay at the eighth jump. But at the tenth fence Bud Bud went down sprawling. Bruening rolled over and over in the turf and Bud Bud was out of the race.

Risque, two time winner in New York this season, made a brilliant and game run down the stretch under a rousing ride by Jockey E. Steffen to score by a head from Aunt Deb, in the Good and Gay purse, which engaged seven fleet two year old fillies at five furlongs.

AFTER THE BLOWOFF—WHAT?

According to baseball tradition the whole course of the National league pennant race depends on the effect of the holiday prank by which Manager Joe McCarthy is planning to blast Uncle Wilbert Robinson and his Brooklyn Robins from the leadership. Tradition has it that the team holding first place on July 4 usually wins the pennant. The Robins are leading the Cubs by a fraction of a percentage point, but if the Cubs win two games from the Pirates and Brooklyn breaks even with the Giants, Chicago will hop back into first place. The Cubs can regain the lead also by breaking even, if the Robins lose two.

Pirates Groom Two Mound Aces for Cub Games Today

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 3.—Folks here say that Manager Jewel Ens of the Pirates has been pointing his nine for the Independence day visit of the champion Cubs. He even has gone so far as to plunk into sixth place that he might save Ray Kremer and Heine Meine, his two best pitchers, for the holiday festival. Root and Bush probably will be the Cub hurlers.

The Cubs will start the day's doings tomorrow in about the same league position as they were last Fourth of July.

Pirates Lead On Fourth.

Tonight the Cubs technically are in second place by an eyelash, .6056 to .6060 as the prolonged percentages read for Chicago and Brooklyn respectively. A year ago the Cubs were in first place by a couple of eyelashes and on the night of the fourth they were in second place.

On the night of the fourth last year the Pirates were in first place, following two winning performances against St. Louis by the two fellows who are going to pitch tomorrow—Kremer and Meine. The McCarthys surrendered the lead temporarily because they took a 9 to 8 licking from Cincinnati in the morning game at Wrigley field. They won in the afternoon, 10 to 5.

Brooklyn Tough on Giants.

Brooklyn has been pretty rough on the Giants so far this year, but the percentage players we interviewed in Gotham this week were figuring the law of averages would catch up with the Robins in the impending series. Even though the Giants are five games behind in third place there is some question as to whether it wouldn't be better for the Cubs interests if the Robins were to win the series. But who can tell?

The Cubs are due to arrive here at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow morning and will just have time to eat and change to their uniforms for practice. The first game starts at 10:30 o'clock.

[Postscript to J. Vince McCarthy: We just watched Bob Smith hold the Pirates to four hits in an 8 to 0 Boston triumph. The Pirates sure have softened up since last we saw 'em, Joe.]

Giants Adopt Ladies' Day Plan; Will Start on July 14

New York, July 3.—(AP)—The New York Giants have been converted to the "ladies' day" idea in baseball. The Giant management announced today that beginning July 14, each Monday will be ladies' day at the Polo grounds and all feminine fans will be admitted free.

These box scores tell the story of the double header between the Cubs and Pirates on July 4, 1910. The Cubs were in first place at the time, having taken the lead during the week of May 28. They maintained that pace to the end of the season, winning the National league flag.

Browns, Sox Play Double Header Today

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Unless a last minute hitch should occur, there will be a new shortstop introduced this afternoon at Comiskey park. The introduction will occur in the course of a double header in which the White Sox will attempt to use the St. Louis Browns as a means of escaping from last place in the American league.

The new shortstop who will be photographed for the first time in big league flannels is Gregory Mulleavy, who was purchased from the Toledo club while the Sox were staggering around the east. The rookie was still absent last night but he is somewhat anxious about seeing just what the big show is like and probably will make good on his promise to be available by 1:30 o'clock this afternoon.

It is likely that Manager Bush will employ 90 per cent of his pitching staff in one of the games today. This means Ted Lyons. The other battle may be handled by several fellows, with the possibility that Red Faber will be the first of them.

COGGESHALL AND BARNES GO INTO NET SEMI-FINALS

Bruce Barnes of Austin, Tex., seeded one in the draw, and Harris Coggeshall of Des Moines, the fourth seeded star, yesterday entered the semi-finals in the singles of the Western Tennis Championship tournament at the River Forest Tennis club.

Barnes, and Coggeshall, and Sutter, and Bayon of Tulane university, also reached the semi-finals in the doubles.

Barnes dropped the first set of his match with Karl Kamrath, his fellow townsman, but he stayed in the back court in the last two sets and won, 5-7, 6-3, 6-2. Coggeshall had too much in his shots for the other Austin boy, Joe Bill Bralley, winning 6-2, 6-2.

In the doubles, Sutter and Bayon defeated Walter Hayes and Fred Royer 9-7, 3-6, 6-2, 6-3, while Barnes and Coggeshall trimmed Kaiser and Parkhill, 6-2, 6-2, 10-8.

Play in the women's singles reached the quarter final round with none of the favorites falling by the wayside. Clara Louise Zinke, Cincinnati, trimmed Linne Burkhart, 6-1, 6-1, and will meet Mary Zita McHale, Dallas, Tex., who eliminated Mrs. Florence Wittleder, 6-1, 6-3. Catherine Wolf, Indianapolis, Illinois state champion, defeated Vera Trayford, 6-1, 7-5. Lucy Jane Hedberg, north shore star, beat Rene Karr, 7-5, 6-2.

JONES ARRIVES TODAY TO REST FOR U. S. OPEN

New York, July 3.—[Special.]—Bobby Jones left New York today for Minneapolis and the national open with the final salute of his fellow Atlantans ringing in his ears. He will breeze into Chicago tomorrow for a two day rest and jollification before proceeding on to the Minnesota metropolis for the serious business of another golf battle with the world's best.

Georgians at Train.

The Jones train departed from the Pennsylvania station at 3 p. m. shortly before which time the southern delegation congregated there and the soft drawl native to each one of them was lost in cheers for the man whom the English call the greatest golfer in the world.

There was only one misadventure that featured the leave taking, and that was the absence of Cyril Tolley, the Englishman who up to the last minute was expected to join his fellow golfer on his way to the tournament in which they would both play, but when the time came for the train to leave there was no Tolley to be found.

Jones waited expectantly for his friend to arrive. He appealed to the conductor to hold the Broadway Limited up for two minutes and this was done, and still the Englishman failed to appear. Finally further delay became impractical and the train moved out of the station.

Tolley in Wrong Station.

Later Tolley was discovered standing in front of the gates leading to the 20th Century in the Grand Central station, waiting for Jones. With the American's decision to remain in Chicago over Saturday it is probable that the two will meet and proceed the rest of the way together.

Accompanying Bobby were his mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Robert T. Jones; his wife and her father, John W. Malone, left earlier for Atlanta, where Clara Malone Jones, five years old, and Robert Tyre Jones III., three years old, are sitting around congratulating each other on what a fine fellow they picked out for a father.

What a Relief! Prince of Wales' Panama Found

WEST HARTLEPOOL, England, July 3.—(AP)—Members of the greens committee of the dignified old Seaton-Carew golf course, who had been seriously contemplating hara-kiri and other forms of self-destruction for the last twenty-four hours, resumed their normal mental comfort today when they learned that the prince of Wales' favorite Panama hat had been found.

The prince, who played the course yesterday with Lord Londonderry, Lord Castlereagh, and Capt. Aird, sought comfort by giving his hat and tie into his caddy's custody.

At the end of the round the caddy was horrified to find he had lost the hat. Wales took the incident philosophically, but he said he hoped the headgear would be recovered, as "it is not very valuable as far as cost is concerned, but I value it."

The hat had the words "New York" stamped on the inside. The prince explained that it had come from abroad, but did not say whether he had bought it or it was given to him.

Meanwhile searching parties headed by the worried club officials searched the course until darkness, but had no luck. Today, however, word was received from Wynyard hall, where the prince is a guest of Lord Londonderry, that the hat finally had been picked up on the eighth green and returned to the owner.

Girls' Entries Crowd Boys in Tribune Swim

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Chicago's champion boy and girl speed swimmers will be crowned in THE TRIBUNE races in Lincoln park lagoon Sunday afternoon, July 27. All boys and girls between the ages of 12 and 15, inclusive, are eligible to compete for the titles.

It would be difficult to find many who cannot swim, for Chicago has advantages other cities do not possess. With Lake Michigan's shore dotted with beaches and park pools available, most boys and girls can swim. But now for the first time THE TRIBUNE plans to determine the champions.

Two Age Divisions.

The races will start at 2 o'clock. Each will be 100 yards. The 12 and 13 year old boys will compete together in one division and those who are 14 and 15 will swim together in another group. The age divisions for girls are the same.

Entries are not limited to Chicago. Any boy or girl who sends in an entry blank before July 21 with his age, address and parent's signature has a chance for the title regardless of his residence. Warner Turriff, 219 North Rand street, Highland Park, Ill., leads the list of early entrants from the north shore towns.

Boys no longer monopolize swimming. The many entries of girls prove that. Geraldine Patterson, who lives on the far south side, seeks the 12 and 13 year old championship. However, the north and west sides have entered in greater numbers and it may be one of them will defeat Geraldine. Miss Fash, assistant health director of the West Side Young Women's Christian association, has entered five girls. She writes she expects one of them to win the title.

Harry Cullinan, director of the board of education playground in Auburn park, has entered five boys. They are Harry Hanson, Jack Clark, Sam Von Seheben, Dick Sinnott, and Earl Twomey.

The winner in each division will be awarded the champion's medal. Those finishing second, third, and fourth in each race also will receive medals. Every contestant who swims 100 yards will earn a merit badge.

SHOOT 75 OR 125, IT'S ALL THE SAME IN TRIBUNE GOLF

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Thousands of Chicagoans will gather on the links this morning to begin a three day carnival of golf. Tournaments will be conducted at most of the private clubs, but preliminaries for the most mammoth meet of all will be held on the park and daily fee courses where an army of players will shoot the 18 hole round which will give them a place in THE TRIBUNE'S new tournament.

Whether their score is good or bad they can get into the meet simply by mailing their cards to THE TRIBUNE golf editor. Some will shoot 125 and others 75, but those whose scores are high stand the same chance of victory as those whose cards are low. When the draw for first matches is announced in THE TRIBUNE one week from today, each entrant will find himself pitted against an opponent of equal ability.

One Has 90, Another 91.

Buck Jones of 6610 Kimbark went out yesterday and shot a round of 91 at Cog Hill while Hardy Richards was negotiating Pickwick in 90. As these two are about evenly matched it is possible that the pairings will bring them together. But in no case will Jones be sent up against a man who shoots 76 or Richards against one whose score is 106.

Should these two find themselves listed as opponents next Friday Jones would go back to Cog Hill or any other course he chooses and shoot another 18 hole round at any time which fits into his leisure during the succeeding week. Meanwhile Richards would be doing the same at Pickwick or Harlem or Fairlawn or any public course he selects. Then they will send in their cards and they will be matched against each other to determine the winner.

Most meets are designed for the man who shoots in the 70s or low 80s, but after all only a small percentage of Chicago's golfers can do this. So if it were not for a contest such as THE TRIBUNE is conducting, the thousands of average players would never get a chance to experience the satisfaction of beating an opponent in tournament competition.

Average Game Can Win.

THE TRIBUNE'S meet is for all men and women who haven't the time or natural ability to become great players as well as for those who have. Regardless of the degree of his skill, an entrant can win by playing his average game over his favorite course at any time which fits in with his leisure.

There's still time to get into this tournament if you haven't already done so. When you get through playing 18 holes today just write your name and address on your card and mail it to THE TRIBUNE golf editor. It will be necessary for you to do nothing out of your regular routine and no matter what the caliber of your game is, you will have just as good a chance for victory as the next fellow.

You will be a part of one of the biggest tournaments in the history of the sport and will have the fun of shooting against a real opponent. And the fact that you may never see him will make it all the more interesting. Shoot your preliminary round today and mail in your card.

Dallas, Tex., July 3.—(AP)—More than 150 of the nation's leading women athletes took final workouts today in preparation for the national A. A. U. track and field meet scheduled at Southern Methodist University stadium here tomorrow.

Competition in dashes was expected to be close, with such outstanding stars as Stella Walsh of Cleveland, Betty Robinson and Helen Filkey of Chicago, and Olive Krueger of Chattanooga, Tenn., slated to match their speed. The quartet holds a dozen indoor and outdoor world records.

ATHLETICS MAKE HITS COUNT; BEAT YANKEES, 5 TO 4

Score a Run for Every Blow Registered.

Philadelphia, Pa., July 3.—(AP)—After a 55 minute interruption between the fifth and sixth innings because of rain, the Athletics staged a three run rally in the seventh to gain a 5 to 4 decision over the New York Yankees today.

The Yanks took a three run lead by scoring a run in the opening inning and two more in the fifth, but Jimmy Foxx drove in two counters as the rain started and the later rally completed the triumph. The champions got only five hits off Henry Johnson, but they collected them all in the two big innings. They also had the benefit of nine walks and two errors.

New York scored a run in the ninth, but Mose Grove stopped the rally, retiring Lary and Ruth with the tying run on base. Ruth refused to let yesterday's painful injury keep him out of the game, but his bat was not particularly effective. He did not get a hit, walking twice and making one sacrifice. Score:

MOON MULLINS—THE UPLIFTER

SMITTY—A HANDOUT

TUFFY GRIFFITH.

TUFFY GRIFFITH, or is it Griffiths, fought better against Johnny Risko at the Stadium Wednesday night than when we last saw him. His two handed attack and his confidence were notable improvements. Similarly, Risko did not appear as well as when we saw him against Campolo in Miami last winter.

If Risko fought as well as he did against Campolo, but did not appear as well, the deduction is that he was prevented from so doing by Griffith. In the Miami bout Risko was given a draw, which was objectionable to the crowd there, who thought he won, although we thought it a fair decision. He has since defeated Campolo. So if Griffith is matched against Campolo, he would appear to have a decided edge on the Risko showings.

If Schmeling and Sharkey are not to meet this fall because of Max's legal entanglements with a discarded manager, all these challengers will have plenty of time to fight it out before getting their crack at the German schlager. Griffith is in the contender class. He will be better prepared with still more experience. His finished work against Risko, giving him a verdict to which he was well entitled, although neither man was in imminent danger of a knockout, shows his possibilities.

The bout between Paul Swiderski and Frankie Simms was generously booed by the crowd. The Wake thought Swiderski fought a smart battle. Outweighed twenty-four pounds by an opponent with a dangerous but usually telegraphic right, Swiderski forced the attack most of the way, but elected to whittle his opponent down to his size rather than trade punches. His tactics were sound. We don't suppose fight crowds ever will appreciate strategy as much as slugging, but we can't criticize any boxer for winning in any way possible, providing he puts up a battle. That Swiderski did. Simms outweighed his opponent, but was not his equal in ring lore, which made the affair slow at times.

Yankee Track Stars Win in German Meet

DUESSELDORF, Germany, July 3.—(AP)—America's track and field athletes carried off principal honors in their second appearance in Germany today. George Bullwinkle of City college of New York, Pete Bowen of the University of Pittsburgh, Steve Anderson, University of Washington, and Tommy Warner of Northwestern won their specialties.

Bullwinkle won the 1,000 meters' run in easy fashion in 2 minutes 30 8-10 seconds with Lefeber of Germany second. Bowen, National Collegiate A. A. quarter mile titleholder, captured the 400 meters run in 49 2-10 seconds, with the German, Danz, second.

Warne won the pole vault, clearing 13 feet 1½ inches. Stetchemesser of Germany was second with a vault of 11 feet 9¾ inches. A German quartet beat a picked American four in the 400 meter relay by one-tenth of a second in 42 6-10 seconds. Ed Hamm of Georgia Tech, broad jump star, was injured in the Americans' first appearance in Germany at Cologne yesterday and did not compete today.

New York, July 3.—[Special.]—Jesse Sweetser, former national amateur golf champion, has joined the ranks of the militant wets as head of an athletic division to be organized by the Crusaders, Inc., an organization devoted to the repeal of the eighteenth amendment, it was announced today.

"Any one who has spent as much time in locker rooms as I have knows that the nineteenth hole nowadays has stymied many an otherwise promising golfer," said Sweetser in explaining the athletic viewpoint on the subject.

Persons interested in athletics also are interested in temperance, Sweetser explained, and are eager for a change from the present system of control "under the intemperate guise of national prohibition."

Sweetser will have charge of the enrolling of golfers, tennis players, polo players, and all other athletes in New York City, Westchester, and Long Island.

Racing Notes

The first of the crack eastern jockeys to reach Arlington Park will be Sonny Workman, who is under contract to Harry Payne Whitney. He is to arrive this morning. Earl Sande will be here tomorrow morning, and over the week-end will come Laverne Fator, A. Robertson, F. Coltiletti, J. H. Burke, MacK. Garner, J. McCoy, and Bill Kelsay.

"It's the greatest racing plant I've ever been on," was the comment of the veteran trainer, Thomas J. Healy who arrived at Arlington yesterday with a band of Harry Payne Whitney's horses. Among the horses he brought were Dustamall, Hat Broom, Angry, Rideaway, and Panasette. All are eligible for the Arlington Stakes.

Gallant Fox last night was aboard the Broadway Limited and rolling toward Chicago.

Some fast workouts were turned in during the training hour at Arlington yesterday morning. Herbert Bayard Swope's $13,000 yearling, Seb, a son of High Time-Red Hair II., breezed three furlongs in 34 seconds flat. Blowout, a bay daughter of Blue Pet-Conine, training for the Lassie Stakes revival of next Saturday, stepped a quarter in :22-3-5, which is about as fast as race horses travel.

BROKERS' LOANS REFLECT DECLINE IN STOCK MART

Total for Week Is Off $197,000,000.

Security and commodity exchanges will be closed today in observance of Independence day. With the exception of the Kansas City grain exchange and the banks, all markets will remain closed tomorrow.

BY O. A. MATHER.

The drastic decline in the stock market last month and its accompanying deflation of credit used in speculation was given further reflection yesterday in the weekly report on brokers' loans by the federal reserve board. The report showed a decline of $197,000,000 for the week ended Wednesday, bringing the total down to $3,219,000,000.

It was the fourth successive weekly recession and brought the aggregate decline in the last four weeks to $822,000,000. However, the current decrease had been anticipated from the fact that the monthly report of the New York Stock exchange, issued on Wednesday, showed a decline of $1,420,120,623 in collateral loans of its members during June. The stock exchange report covered two more days than have the reserve board's reports and the former also took in all loans to its members from every source, whereas the latter records only loans made by the New York Federal Reserve member banks.

Far Below Peak.

It is noteworthy that brokers' loans as reported by the reserve board now are less than half the peak figures of $4,384,000,000 established on Oct. 2, 1929, which was just before the stock market started to collapse. The current total also is $2,550,000 below a year ago.

Lack of demand for credits for speculative purposes, the prevalent low rates on call loans, and the usual midyear and month-end demand for commercial credit combined to influence heavy withdrawals of funds from the stock market by all classes of lenders. The New York banks reduced their own loans by $54,000,000 but still are lending $455,000,000 more than a year ago. Interior banks withdrew $59,000,000 and are furnishing $926,000,000 less than a year ago. Non-banking lenders, including corporations, took down $83,000,000 and are lending $2,078,000,000 less than a year ago.

The severity of the decline in stock prices last month is indicated by a compilation prepared by Frazier, Jelke & Co., brokers. The market value of 100 representative common stocks declined $5,414,086,000, or 16 per cent, to a total of $28,465,668,000. On a percentage basis, this is the largest decrease recorded in any month since last October, and it brings the appraisal of the 100 issues back to a point slightly lower than at the end of last November. The group is selling 34.4 per cent under the high on Aug. 30, 1929, and 17.2 per cent above the low on Nov. 13, 1929.

Month's Largest Loss.

The largest loss last month was in the amusement group, which dropped 29.5 per cent. Other declines registered in percentages follow: Motors, 22.2; mining, 20.1; chain stores, 19.8; utilities, 18.8; miscellaneous industrials, 17.5; electrical manufacturing, 17.1; chemicals, 16.7; oils, 16; rails, 9.7; steels, 9.2; railroad equipment, 8.2; and foods, 7.7 per cent.

The weekly statement of the federal reserve system, issued last night reflects the midyear demand for commercial credit and efforts of the reserve board to maintain easy money rates. The member banks increased their borrowings by $28,908,000 to a total of $260,143,000, but the reserve banks also made additional credit available by purchasing $55,172,000 of bankers' acceptances and $18,983,000 of government securities. Note circulation also was expanded $29,383,000. Deposits rose $14,421,000. Gold and total reserves dropped $65,765,000 and $46,587,000, respectively. The ratio of reserves to liabilities sagged to 80.7 per cent, compared with 83.7 per cent last week.

No Rate Change.

The New York Reserve bank made no change yesterday in its 2½ per cent rediscount rate. Its report showed an increase of $10,468,000 in member banks' borrowings, bringing the total to $48,621,000. The reserve bank bought $45,636,000 of bankers' acceptances. Deposits increased $12,218,000. Reserves dropped $81,083,000 and the reserve ratio fell to 81.2 per cent, compared with 88.9 per cent a week ago.

The report of the Chicago Reserve bank showed an increase of only $506,000 in member bank borrowings, bringing the total to $19,839,000. Bankers' acceptances increased $1,755,869. Deposits rose $6,751,000. Reserves expanded $3,837,000, but the reserve ratio eased to 86.1 per cent, compared with 86.2 per cent a week ago.

Employe, 86, Is Oldest to Share in Insurance Plan

Cooperative group insurance for the employes of the administrative departments of Hart Schaffner & Marx, clothing manufacturers, has gone into effect with approximately $2,500,000 worth of insurance, life and double indemnity accident, in force. The policy was written by the Travelers Insurance company. Nicholas Zimmerman, eighty-six years old, 5644 Wabash avenue, was the oldest employe to take advantage of the insurance plan. He has been in the employ of Hart Schaffner & Marx for thirty-six and a half years.

Say Wheat Output Must Fit Demand

Washington, D. C., July 3.—Adjustment of production to the potential domestic demand offers the only complete answer to the wheat price problem farmers of the nation were told today by Chairman Alexander Legge of the federal farm board and Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde. Marked improvement in prices, it was asserted, need not be expected under present conditions. The theory that crop surpluses may be dumped abroad was described as fallacious.

ARTHUR M. HYDE. [Harris-Ewing Photo]

Chairman Legge and Secretary Hyde talked over a nationwide radio hookup. Their addresses were supplemental to the world wheat outlook report issued yesterday by the department of agriculture and marked the beginning of a speaking campaign in the heart of the hard winter wheat belt in the west.

Chairman Legge said that the world wheat situation "is not one that offers hope for improvement of return to the American wheat grower in the near future if he continues to produce so much wheat that the price for all his crop is determined by the part he must sell in the world market." Mr. Legge explained that surplus wheat cannot be dumped abroad in view of restrictions against importations set up by practically all importing countries.

Secretary Hyde said he believed the farmers want the truth and that "the facts are none too encouraging."

"We do not expect wheat prices to remain as low as they have been during the last month," said Mr. Hyde. "Nevertheless the present prospect is that world wheat prices during the next seven years will average appreciably lower than in the last seven years. For seven years ending July 1, 1930, the price of No. 2 hard winter wheat at Kansas City averaged $1.28 a bushel. The average for June, 1930, was about 90 cents a bushel.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Indianapolis, Ind., July 3.—The Insull interests, having acquired the Union Traction of Indiana electric interurban lines Wednesday, today took another step to obtain control of Indiana electric lines which the Indiana public service commission denied them permission to buy some time ago when the Midland Utilities company, an Insull holding company, bought the bonds of the Terre Haute, Indianapolis and Eastern Traction company.

The purchase price of the bonds was approximately $3,612,000, 25 per cent less than the valuation set up when the proposed Insull Indiana electric transit and power merger was before the commission.

That purchase of the bonds was preliminary to actual ownership of the property was indicated when Robert Feustel, Fort Wayne, executive vice president of the Midland company, made a statement that "in due time the property will be offered for sale at a receiver's sale and then the Insull interests will bid or, rather, appear in the attitude of buying their own property."

Elmer Stout, receiver for the company, and Judge James M. Milner of the county Superior court, in whose court the receivership is pending, both asserted they knew nothing of the transaction until after it had been consummated.

"The sale of the bonds is in no way a sale of the traction company," Judge Milner said. "It is purely an individual transaction and does not have my approval. However, there has been no sale of property and there will be none until I order it."

SIMMONS AND SPIEGEL MAY STERN CO. OMIT QUARTERLY DIVIDENDS

New York, July 3.—(AP)—Directors of the Simmons company, manufacturers of beds and furniture, today omitted the regular quarterly dividend of 75 cents on the common stock. At the previous quarterly meeting the directors omitted the stock dividend of 1½ per cent which the company had been paying in addition to the cash disbursement.

Simmons stock closed on the New York Stock Exchange at $23.25 today, a net gain for the day of 75 cents. Yesterday the stock reached a new low at $22.12. It was one of the features of the 1929 bull market, in which it touched a record price of $188 a share.

Directors of Spiegel May Stern company omitted the quarterly dividend of 75 cents a share due on the common stock.

The regular quarterly dividend of $1.25 has been declared by International Cigar Machinery company on its old common stock. The stock recently was split two for one.

Directors of the Eureka Vacuum Cleaner company voted to omit the quarterly dividend of $1 a share due at this time.

In explaining the action Fred Wardell, president, said:

"We omitted the current dividend because we believe it to be to the best interests of stockholders and company to pay dividends only when earned. While our unit sales in the first half of this year were 15,000 greater than in the like period of 1929, our earnings were affected by the large number of repossessions."

TO ASK COURT FOR CITY STATE BANK DECISION

Circuit Judge William V. Brothers will be asked early next week to authorize a partial settlement with depositors of the City State Bank of Chicago, it was learned yesterday. When State Auditor Oscar Nelson closed the bank on Nov. 2, 1929, it was announced that deposits totaled $3,655,265.

Gen. Abel Davis of the Chicago Title and Trust company, receiver for the bank, has since the closing been engaged in an audit of its books to determine what percentage of their deposits the depositors will be able to realize. A report covering the progress made in straightening out the institution's affairs will be placed before Judge Brothers and the court will thus determine the extent of the settlement possible.

Aluminium Co. of America.

Please give me by return mail a complete résumé of the Aluminum Company of America, its past and future prospects, earnings, dividends, and possibilities.—R. H. W.

Aluminum Company of America was incorporated in 1888 and adopted its present title in 1907. It is the outstanding factor in the production of aluminum in America and controls most of the known sources of the metal in this country. The company is also a large manufacturer of aluminum goods.

Earnings in the last three years have followed a decided upward trend, reflecting expanding uses for aluminum. Profits last year were 22 per cent above those of the year before, despite a falling off in demand in the last two months of the year.

Net income in 1929 was $25,318,050. This was equal, after preferred dividends, to $10.38 per share on 1,472,625 no par common shares, after miscellaneous adjustments. Net income in 1928 was $20,672,750, or $7.05 per share on the same basis, against $15,108,024 in 1927.

In addition to the common shares there is outstanding $147,262,500 of preferred stock and a funded debt of $40,205,000.

The financial position at the end of last year was strong. Current assets were $66,292,840, and current liabilities were $11,919,280, leaving a net working capital of $54,373,560.

Although the common is not on a dividend paying basis, the company's position in the industry, its record of earnings, and its financial position warrant the stock being fairly well regarded.

Mengel Co.

Wish you would please advise me about the stock of the Mengel company currently quoted at 12. Is this a safe stock? Dividend rate?—M. J.

Mengel company, manufacturer of wooden boxes, corrugated and fiber containers, lumber, veneer, and toys, in the first quarter of the current year reported net income of $142,922, equal to 26 cents per share on 320,000 common shares. In the first quarter of 1929 net income was $399,887, or $1.06 per share.

For several years through 1929 sales and profits increased steadily. In 1929 net income was $1,248,172, or $3.16 per common share, against $902,754 in 1928, $510,184 in 1927, and $498,086 in 1926.

As of March 31, 1930, current assets were $7,532,046, and current liabilities were $651,899, leaving a net working capital of $6,880,147.

Cites Interest in Decline of Commodities

BY SCRUTATOR.

The steady decline in commodity prices is worrying many persons besides the farmers and the federal farm board. The condition is world wide and foreigners are taking thought on it as are our own experts.

Inextricably finance and productive work are mingled in the problem. Their relationships are not definitely fixed. There is general disagreement on whether finance is the tail or the dog; on whether the financial phenomena of the last few years caused the depression in commodities or whether producing methods themselves were casual and were affected only to a minor degree by what happened to money.

More important still is the question: Can a return to what we generally regard as prosperity be greatly hastened by bolder and more decisive measures on the part of central banks than have yet been taken?

World Credit Conditions.

A straight announcement in the affirmative is given by the Royal Bank of Canada in its July letter. First stating that certain indices of a standard nature show in the last year declines of 16 per cent in the United States and Great Britain, 13 per cent in France and 8 per cent in Canada were registered in wholesale commodity prices, the bank follows with the assertion that it was all due to world credit conditions.

Putting it briefly, the reasoning is that speculative operations in the United States in late 1928 and early 1929 brought a demand for credit that in turn caused a flow of funds to the United States. Thus credit stringency was felt in South America and other continents before it was here, and export business as well as the sales of foreign securities in this country fell off sharply.

The Royal bank believes that as credit stringency brought on those troubles and the succeeding ones in the United States, a return to plentiful credit will have an immediately beneficial effect. Its opinion is that despite the lowering of rediscount rates by all the central banks to about half the level of a year ago credit is still too scarce the world over.

Makes Recommendation.

Mere cuts in the federal reserve are thus looked on as insufficient to halt the downward course of commodity prices. Few commercial banks, it is stated, have an oversupply of funds. At the same time the amount of American money in circulation is off considerably—11 per cent from October to June, the Canadian institution finds.

In short, it is recommended that the federal reserve banks should increase their holdings of government bonds to a billion dollars, or 400 million dollars more than at present. This would leave, it is esimated, 350 millions more currency in circulation and furnish enough idle credit to reverse the trend and send commodity prices upward.

A deliberate policy of inflation is justified now to make up for the deflation of the last nine months, it is argued The idea that a central bank of any kind should have a management that devotes itself to the regulation of commodity prices is not new. It is contrary to the wishes of a great many, probably a majority, of thinkers on finance. These believe that a central banking system's function is no more than to furnish credit, as the law allows it, at a price commensurate with the market—that it should furnish service without attempting any dictatorial rôle.

GERMAN LOAN WEAKENS IN BOND TRADING

New York, July 3.—(AP)—Railroad bonds were the major interest of investment buyers in the listed bond market today.

An extensive list of issues were strong as the reinvestment demand influenced higher prices. Other lien issues ruled firm in a dull trading session, which adjourned activity for a three day week-end. Stock privilege issues were irregular in sympathy with the weakness of stocks.

The German 5½ per cent bond, whose appearance excited more interest than any foreign loan in many years, lost nearly 2 points at the opening of the market, following dissolution of the offering syndicate headed by J. P. Morgon & Co. A break in price usually follows such action, but bond men did not anticipate that it would be as sharp. In a turnover of nearly $1,000,000 the bond fluctuated between 88¼ and 89¼, and closed at 88¾, a loss of 1⅛ from Wednesday's closing price of 90, at which the bond was issued. The weakness did not affect the rest of the foreign market.

Makes Survey of Changes in Chicago Businesses

A survey of business changes in Chicago during the first six months of 1930 made by R. L. Polk & Co., shows that 1,972 new businesses were opened during the period as compared with 1,900 in the same months last year. Changes in locations reported totaled 1,980 against 1,500 in the first half of 1929. There were 291 changes in ownership and 604 chain store branches opened. Expansion programs involving additional space were completed by 193 concerns against 100 in the same period in 1929.

Richman Bros. Workers Get Vacation with Pay

All employés of the Richman Brothers company, clothing manufacturers and retailers will get their usual two weeks vacation with pay this year, N. G. Richman, chairman, has announced. Instead of a complete shut down of operations as has been customary in the past only half of the cutting departments and shops will close down at one time. The company's employés also get a week's vacation at New Year's.

CHRYSLER CUTS DOWN SALARIES BY 10 PER CENT

Follows Reduction in Laborers' Hours.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 3.—A general wage reduction of all salaried employés of the Chrysler corporation was announced today as a result of unsatisfactory conditions in the automotive industry. Wall street had heard for several days that large motor companies were taking steps to reduce fixed expenses.

WALTER P. CHRYSLER.

The Chrysler reduction applied to all salaried employés from Walter P. Chrysler, chairman, down. The statement said:

"The 10 per cent reduction of all salaries which Chrysler corporation has made, is consistent with a retrenchment policy which the current depression in business demands. Labor has already contributed substantially through reduced working hours, and it was felt to be only fair that salaried employés should also bear some of the burden.

Ready to Sacrifice.

"The reduction applies to all salaried employés uniformly, from Mr. Chrysler down. It is a tribute to the morale and loyalty of the organization that the advisability of this move has been generally recognized and cheerfully accepted.

"The Chrysler organization is determined to operate its business on a profitable basis under whatever conditions may exist, and the readiness to make all necessary sacrifices as indicated by this move is a factor of strength which is bound to be reflected in the ultimate success of the company and its continued progress in the automobile industry."

H. W. Peters, vice president of the Packard Motor Car company, in charge of distribution, said deliveries of new cars to customers in June totaled 4,300, compared with 4,150 in the like month last year, which was the previous record June. He said that factory shipments of cars to the distributing organization in June also exceeded shipments for any month this year and that the increase in the company's business in June was general throughout the country.

Automotive exports from the United States for the first five months of 1930 today were valued at $172,978,000 by the commerce department. This compared with $299,399,000 for exports of the same period last year. The decline in world purchase of American automobiles was noted in all foreign countries, the compilation said, and was not a factor of any particular geographical area.

Police Charge Strikers.

Flint, Mich., July 3.—(AP)—State police charged into a crowd of striking workmen who were parading back and forth in front of the Fisher Body corporation's plant here today and broke up the demonstration. One man, Ivan Hoops, a striker, was treated for injuries inflicted by a police club and was taken into custody.

The crowd, estimated at about 1,500, disbanded after the attack and after its leaders had urged the men to move on to a meeting place outside the city limits. Five pickets left behind were not molested.

Baldwin Shipments Are Double 1929 Half Year

Philadelphia, July 3.—(AP)—The total shipments of the Baldwin Locomotive works for the first six months of 1930, it was made known here today, were more than double those for the first half of 1929. The figures this year amount to $17,470,000, against $8,589,000 in the corresponding period of 1929. Shipments in June amounted to $3,290,000, which compares with $1,100,000 in June last year. New business booked in June fell off, although it was still slightly larger than new business in June, 1929. Unfilled orders on July 1 amounted to $14,830,000, compared with $14,130,000 a year ago.

Life Insurance Sales in Illinois Show Increase

Life insurance sales in Illinois continue to run considerably ahead of 1929 according to a report from the insurance department of the Illinois chamber of commerce listing May, 1930, sales at $76,727,000 as compared to $75,571,000 for the same month a year ago. Forty-two per cent of the Illinois companies reported gains for the month. Total volume of sales for the first five months of 1930 is listed at $373,685,000, over $14,000,000 greater than for the corresponding period in 1929.

Stock Sales Here Lowest in Over Year

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Easy prices and mild trading marked yesterday's tame session on the Chicago Stock Exchange. From most any point of view it was a drab and uninteresting affair and in point of sales volume was the dullest day on the exchange in a year or more.

The investing and speculating public has, it appears, turned its back on the stock market at least temporarily. Yesterday's transactions of some 100,000 shares represented a minimum of buying and selling on the part of outsiders.

The impending three day holiday made the professionals reluctant in making commitments. What may happen when trading resumes again Monday was being answered with conflicting views among the floor traders and the brokerage house fraternity.

Viewpoints Differ.

Many, they seemed in the majority, saw a continuation of the dull trading which has been the rule for a week or more. Others look for the appearance of a definite trend one way or the other. But the trickiness of the market during the last month has made the prophets less sanguine in their expressions of opinion.

Conspicuous on the weak side in yesterday's trading were Auburn Automobile, Balaban and Katz, and U. S. Gypsum. The other side was represented by U. S. Radio, which netted two points, Super Maid, and Missouri Kansas Pipe Line. Popular stocks were extremely dull, with sales in Middle West, customarily a leader, falling off to around 5,000 shares. Transactions in Grigsby amounted to about 6,000 shares. Price changes in most instances were within a one point margin.

Great Lakes Dredge new stock was initially traded in around 28. It closed fractionally under its best price for the day on moderately heavy sales.

Canadian Applies.

Following the action of the governing committee on Wednesday in amending the constitution to allow Canadians to become members it was announced yesterday that Francis P. O'Hearn of the firm of F. O'Hearn & Co., Toronto, has applied for membership on the exchange.

In his application Mr. O'Hearn said, "The Canadian brokers appreciate the attitude of the exchange in making it possible for them to become members. This move on the part of the exchange will bring a lot of new business to the Chicago markete."

An exchange membership has been posted for transfer to Frederick P. Mullins of Pittsburgh.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 3.—Today's share market looked as though it had been left out in the rain all night. Nobody would have much to do with it. It just dragged along for the most part, with prices sagging from sheer neglect and nobody seeming to care much whether school kept or not.

Toward the last there was a mild show of activity, as many traders backed out of their obligations preparatory to the three day holiday and a few of the more volatile issues tumbled down with considerable clatter.

Allied Chemical and Dye, which has been playing fast and loose with the hopes of its followers for several weeks, had a little conniption fit and went down for a loss of 11½ points. Case Threshing horned in with its usual contribution, this time contributing a dip of 9½ points to the show. Diamond Match slid off 10¼, Air Reduction fell back 9¾, and Columbian Carbon dropped 8½ points.

Main List Sags.

Call money renewed at 2½ per cent but dropped to 2 as funds were freely offered for employment over the week-end, but the laxity of the fund market had little effect on speculative sentiment. There was no news to speak of from outside sources.

Under normal conditions sensational curtailment of member borrowings reported by the stock exchange as of the end of June, bringing the total to the lowest since August, 1927, and signifying the thorough character of recent liquidation, might have been expected to do much toward shaping

Top hogs soared to $9.75 early yesterday, the highest level since June 20. Gains of 25@35c were general on better grades, with the clearance the earliest in several weeks. Only pen holders and packing grades were left in the pens at noon, with the holdover at the close down to 2,000.

Packing sows, however, lost practically all of the first gains and finished slow at mid-week quotations. The day's general average advanced 20c at $9.10, being highest in nearly two weeks and 40c above the low day middle of last week.

With the market closed today and Saturday, the week's average at $8.95 is for four days and compares with $8.80 last week and with $11.00 a year ago. Outside demand was the principal support of the market this week. Shippers bought 22 per cent of the four days' receipts, against 17 per cent all of last week.

Mr. Markheim Explains Case.

"The club has not been able to go ahead with a building program or to buy up the securities demanded by Mr. Mills. In consequence the lease held by the club was transferred back to Mr. Mills in the regular course of events. However, Mr. Mills although releasing his lease back still wishes to realize on the $300,000 paid by the club.

COTTON DECLINES

Additions in the cotton market fairly lower prices. Liverpool was firmer and closed 2d to 3d higher on spot sales 3,000 bales. This was due by favorable weather all over the cotton belt and a disposition to cover up trades for the holiday, there being no more business in American markets until Monday, while Liverpool will remain open. Foodick estimate on acreage is for a decrease of 2.7 per cent, or 45,775,000 acres. Disposition to go slow in trading until issuance of the government report Tuesday. Prices as follow:
